This edition of Cæsar has been prepared with reference to the wants of pupils as ascertained in the recitation room.

The notes are principally grammatical, the intention being to give the student such assistance only as will enable him to find out the author's meaning for himself, while that pernicious help which renders diligent effort unnecessary, has been carefully withheld. No pains have been spared to render the vocabulary sufficient for the thorough understanding of the text, and to remedy the defects which have been found to exist in the vocabularies attached to the editions of the classics heretofore most generally used in our schools. Each word is traced back to the ultimate radical on which it is formed ; the original signification is given, as far as practicable ; and the more difficult phrases in which it occurs are explained.

How far the editor's intention has been realized, it is left with teachers to determine ; and the work is committed to their hands with the hope that it may prove to be a tool with which they can operate satisfactorily and successfully.

COMMENTARIORUM
DE BELLO GALLICO
LIBER I.

I. GALLIA est omnis¹ divisa in partes tres, quarum unam incolunt Belgæ, aliam Aquitani, tertiam, qui² ipsorum³ lingua Celtæ, nostra Galli appellantur. ~~Qui~~ omnes lingua,⁴ institutis, legibus inter se differunt. Gallos ab Aquitanis Garumna flumen, a Belgis Matrona et Sequana dividit.⁵ Horum omnium fortissimi sunt Belgæ, propterea quod a cultu atque humanitate provinciæ longissime ab sunt, minimeque ad eos mercatores sæpe⁶ commeant, atque ea, quæ ad effeminandos⁷ animos pertinent, important: proximique sunt Germanis,⁸ qui trans Rhenum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt: qua⁹ de causa Helvetii quoque reliquos Gallos virtute¹⁰ præcedunt, quod fere quotidianis præliis cum Germanis contendunt, quum aut suis finibus¹¹ eos prohibent, aut ipsi in eorum finibus bellum gerunt. Eorum¹² una pars, quam Gallos obtinere dictum est,¹³ initium capit a flumine Rhodano; continetur Garumna flumine, Oceano, finibus Belgarum; attingit etiam ab Sequanis¹⁴ et Helvetiis flumen Rhenum; vergit ad septentriones. III. Apud Helvetios longe nobilioribus et diuturnius fuit ager. Is, M. Marcellus et M. Elpidius C. Laegius cupidius induxit, et comparationem nobilitatis fecit, et civitas persuasit, ut de finibus suis cum omnibus copiis exirent, et per facile et benignam viam omnibus praeterarent, et tunc Gallico imperio potiri. Ad hoc facilius eis persuasit, quod uniusque loci natura Helvetii continentur: una ex parte flumine Rheno, latissimo atque altissimo, qui agrum Helvetium a Germanis dividit; altera ex parte monte Iura altissimo, qui est inter Sequanos et Helvetios, et tertia lacu Lemano, et flumine Rodano, qui provinciam nostram ab Helvetiis dividit. Illis rebus fiebat, ut et minus late vagarentur, et minus facile bellum inferre possent, quae de cetero quibus bellandi cupidi magno dolore afficiebantur. Proinde multo citius autem hominibus, et pro gloria belli atque fortitudinis, auctor se fines habere arbitrabantur, qui in longitudinem milia passuum CXXL, in latitudinem CXXV passuum.

III. His rebus adducti, et auctores de negotiorum permotione constituerunt eis, quae ad profectum pertinent, comparare, iumentorum et virorum quam maxime numerum coemere, comestis quibus cibis vivere, et in illa copia frumenti suppetere, et cum proleis civitatibus pacem et amicitiam confirmare.

1. Provinciam, §142. Rem. 3.

2. Boios is object of collocarent. Translate in the following order: concessit Eduis petentibus ut collocarent Boios in finibus suis, quod erat cognitum per virtutem. Ut collocarent is both the thing asked and the thing granted; it is omitted after concessit having been once expressed.

3. Egregia virtute is an adjectival expression forming part of the predicate; §154. Rem. 1; or homines may be supplied.

4. Pacem. "The same."

5. Atque. "And," which. §203.

XXV. 1. Nominative ratio confecta erat. As remark had been made out by name of it, giving the name of each person.

2. Qui numerus is a noun-sentence (§214) in the accusative, equivalent to accusative after the compound verbal expression ratio confecta erat. §159. Rem. 4.

3. Possent, §219, c.

4. Pueri, senes, mulieresque, &c. Nominati sunt may be supplied from ratio nominativa confecta erat.

rum omnium rerum summa erat, capitum Helvetiorum⁵ millia CCLXIII, Tulingorum millia XXXVI, Latobrigorum XIV, Rauracorum XXIII, Boiorum XXXII: ex his, qui arma ferre possent, ad millia XCII.⁶ Summa omnium fuerunt⁷ ad millia CCCLXVIII. Eorum,⁸ qui domum redierunt, censu habito, ut⁹ Cæsar imperaverat, repertus est numerus millium¹⁰ C et X.

XXX. Bello Helvetiorum confecto, totius fere Galliæ legati, principes¹ civitatum, ad Cæsarem gratulatum² convenerunt: 'Intelligere sese,³ tametsi pro veteribus Helvetiorum injuriis populi Romani⁴ ab iis pœnas bello repetisset,⁵ tamen eam rem non minus ex usu terræ Galliæ, quam populi Romani⁶ accidisse: propterea quod eo consilio, florentissimis rebus,⁷ domos suas Helvetii reliquissent,⁸ uti toti Galliæ bellum inferrent, imperioque⁹ potirentur,⁹ locumque domicilio¹⁰ ex magna copia deligerent, quem ex omni Gallia opportunissimum ac fructuosissimum¹¹ judicassent,¹² reliquasque civitates stipendiarias¹³ haberent.' Petierunt, 'uti sibi concilium totius Galliæ in diem certam indicere,¹⁴ idque Cæsaris voluntate facere, liceret: sese habere quasdam res, quas ex communi consensu ab eo petere vellent.'¹⁵ Ea re permissa, diem concilio constituerunt, et jurejurando, ne quis enunciaret, nisi quibus communi consilio mandatum esset, inter se sanxerunt.¹⁵

5. Helvetiorum is a subjective genitive limiting capitum, which latter is a partitive genitive limiting millia.

6. Ex his, &c., "Of these (just mentioned) those who could bear arms were about ninety-two thousand."

7. Fuerunt agrees by synesis with the plural expression ad millia trecenta, &c. See §130, Rem. 1.

8. Eorum limits censu.

9. Ut, "As;" §211, Ex (e.)

10. Millium limits numerus, and tells of what the number consisted.

XXX. 1. Principes is in apposition with legati.

2. Gratulatum, §179, a.

3. Intelligere sese depends on dicentes understood; §217.

4. Helvetiorum injuriis populi Romani, "Injuries which the Helvetians had done to the Roman people;" §131, Rem. 2.

5. Repetisset, §224, 5; §217.

6. Populi Romani limits ex usu understood.

7. Florentissimis rebus, "Though their circumstances were very flourishing;" §186, Rem. 1.

8. Imperio, §159, Rem. 6.

9. Potirentur, deligerent, haberent, are coordinate with inferrent.

10. Domicilio, §144.

11. Opportunissimum ac fructuosissimum (locum), §151, b.

12. Judicassent would be subj. in direct discourse; (§210, b.) "And might choose a place for their residence which they should deem most suitable, &c." A perfect tense is used because the completion of the action is referred to.

13. Stipendiarias, §151, b.

14. Indicere idque facere is subject of liceret.

15. Et jurejurando—sanxerunt, "And they bound each other by an oath (literally, confirmed among themselves, &c.) that no one, except (those) to whom it had been entrusted by common consent, should tell (what had been done.)" The sentence nisi mandatum esset is thus resolved: nisi ii, quibus, &c., mandatum

XXXI. Eo concilio dimisso, iidem principes civitatum, qui ante fuerant ad Cæsarem, reverterunt, petieruntque, uti sibi¹ secreto in occulto² de sua omniumque³ salute cum eo agere liceret. Ea re impetrata, sese omnes fientes Cæsari⁴ ad pedes projecerunt: 'Non minus se id contendere et laborare,⁵ ne ea, quæ dixissent,⁶ enunciantur,⁷ quam uti ea, quæ vellent,⁶ impetrarent;⁸ propterea quod, si enunciatum esset,⁹ summum in cruciatum se venturos viderent.'¹⁰ Locutus est pro his Divitiacus Æduus: 'Galliæ totius factiones esse duas: harum alterius¹¹ principatum tenere Æduos, alterius Arvernos.¹² Hi quum tantopere de potentatu inter se multos annos¹³ contenderent, factum esse, uti ab Arvernīs Sequanisque Germani mercede arcesserentur.¹⁴ Horum primo circiter millia XV Rhenum transisse: posteaquam agros et cultum et copias Gallorum homines feri ac barbari adamassent,¹⁵ transductos plures: nunc esse in Gallia ad C et XX millium numerum.¹⁶ cum his Æduos eorumque cliētes semel atque iterum¹⁷ armis contendisse; magnam calamitatem pulsos accepisse. omnem nobilitatem, omnem senatum, omnem equitatum amisisse.' Quibus¹⁸ præliis calamitatibusque fractos, qui et sua virtute et populi Romani hospitio atque amicitia plurimum ante in Gallia potuissent,⁶ coactos esse¹⁹ Sequanis obsides dare, nobilissimos civitatis, et jurejurando civitatem obstringere, sese neque ob-esset enunciantur: "That no one should tell unless they, to whom it had been entrusted, &c., should tell."

XXXI. 1. Sibi is remote object of liceret.

2. Secreto, "Without any other being present;" in occulto, "secretly," "without any one finding it out."

3. Sua omniumque. Both sua and omnium are subjective limitations of salute, and hence coupled by que; §181, Rem. 4.

4. Cæsari may either be the remote object of projecerunt, ("they threw themselves before Cæsar at his feet;") or it may limit pedes like a genitive, §147.

5. Se id contendere et laborare is oblique discourse, depending on dicentes understood. "That they were no less anxious that what they had said should not be told, than, &c."

6. Dixissent, §217.

7. Ne ea—enunciantur is a noun-sentence, in apposition with id.

8. Quam uti—impetrarent, "Than to obtain what they wished." The final sentence limits contendere understood

9. Si enunciatum esset, §197, Rem. 4; §198, a.

10. Viderent, §190.

11. Harum, (part. gen.) limits alterius, which is objective and limits principatum.

12. Æduos, Arvernos, §79, 4.

13. Annos, §153.

14. Arcesserentur is limited by ab Arvernīs Sequanisque, the agent; and mercede, the means.

15. Posteaquam—adamassent is a temporal sentence. For subj. see §217.

16. Nunc esse—numerus, "That there were now in Gaul about the number of a hundred and twenty thousand." The plural expression ad centum et viginti millium numerum, is the subject of esse.

17. Semel atque iterum, "Again and again"

18. Quibus, §129, Rem. 9.

19. Coactos esse, has eos understood for its subject, or the adjective sentence qui—potuissent; observe that the acc. with inf. is used here, because quibus, though a relative in form, is in fact a demonstrative here; §217, Rem. 3.

tatem ejus facta sit,³⁸ hominem esse barbarum, iracundum, temera-

20. Sese—repetituros depends on the compound verbal expression jurejurando obstringere.

21. Neque recusatu-ros, quo minus—essent, "Nor refuse to be (that they should the less be) forever under their control and authority; §193, Rem. 5.

22. Qui adduci non potuerit, &c., "Who could not be induced to swear."

23. Romam, §154.

24. Postulat, §179. a.

25. Galliæ, §134.

26. Tertiamque partem—occupavisset et nunc—juberet. These sentences are co-ordinate with propterea quod Ariovistus consedisset above.

27. Paucis ante mensibus, "A few months before," §153. Note

28. Harudum, §134. "Twenty-four thousand men of the Harudians."

29. Neque enim conferendum esse &c. "For neither was the Gallic (country) to be compared with the country of the Germans," so far superior was the Gallic country. The Latin idiom here is the reverse of our own: we would say, "The German country is not to be compared with the Gallic, on account of its inferiority."

Observe that Gallicum & Germanorum limit the noun in precisely the same manner, both being subjective: §131, Rem. 4.

30. Hanc, "The former," i.e. the Gallic. The demonstrative of the first person is used here to refer to Gallicum above, because the speaker was a Gaul.

31. Ut semel—vicerit, "When he had once conquered." For the change of form past to present see Chap. XIV, Note 27; a similar change, however, is not allowable in English unless the time of the leading verb is changed;—"he says."

32. Obsides is second accusative expressing the character; the person from whom he demanded, &c., is omitted, being implied in nobilissimi cujusque, "every nobleman."

33. Omnia exempla cruciatu-que, "All kinds of torture,"—literally, "all examples and tortures." This is a case of hendiadys, (one by-two,) one idea being expressed by means of two words connected by a copulative conjunction.

34. Si qua res, &c.—facta sit, "If any thing was not done according to his rium : non posse ejus imperia diutius sustineri. Nisi si quid³⁵ in Cæsare populoque Romano sit auxilii,³⁶ omnibus Gallis³⁷ idem esse faciendum, quod Helvetii fecerint,³⁸ ut domo emigrent;³⁹ aliud domicilium, alias sedes, remotas a Germanis, petant;³⁹ fortunamque, quæcumque accadat, experiantur. Nihil Sequani respondere,¹⁰ sed in eadem tristitia taciti⁶ permanere.¹⁰ Quum ab iis⁹ sæpius quæreret, neque ullam omnino vocem exprimere posset, idem Divitiacus Æduus respondit : ‘Hoc¹¹ esse miseriorem gravio-remque fortunam Sequanorum præ reliquorum,¹² quod soli ne in occulto quidem queri, nec auxilium implorare auderent,¹³ absentis-que Ariovisti¹⁴ crudelitatem, velut si coram adesset,¹⁵ horrerent.¹⁶ will or whim.” For the perfect, see §198, a.

35. Nisi si quid, &c., “Unless there is some help in Cæsar and the Roman people.” Observe that si is repeated after nisi for emphasis.

36. Auxilii, §134, Rem. 1.

37. Gallis, §145.

38. Ut domo emigrent is in apposition with idem. “To go out from home.”

39. Petant, “And seek.” This sentence is co-ordinate with ut—emigrent, et being omitted to give animation to the narrative.

40. Enunciata sint, §198, a.

41. Non dubitare quin—sumat, “That he (Divitiacus) does not doubt that he will inflict the severest punishment on all the hostages who are in his hands.”

42. Ne major multitudo Germanorum Rhenum transducatur. “That Cæsar, &c., can prevent a greater multitude of Germans from being led over the Rhine;” literally, “can frighten-off (Ariovistus) that a greater multitude may not be led over.” Rhenum is the object of transducatur.

position; §152, Rem. 2.

XXXII. 1. A Cæsare, §151, Rem. 1.

2. Unos, “Alone;” §64, Rem. 2, latter part.

3. Ex omnibus limits unos; §134, Rem. 2.

4. Rerum, §134.

5. Facerent, §210, c.

6. Tristes agrees with the subject, (sequanos understood,) but limits intueri; §128, Rem. 2.

7. Intueri is coordinate with facere above.

8. Esset, §214.

9. Ex ipsis, §151, Rem. 1.

10. Respondere, permanere, §175.

11. Hoc limits miseriorem gravio-remque, §168. “That the lot of the Sequans was the more wretched and severe, &c.”

12. Præ reliquorum sc. fortuna.

13. Auderent, §217; §190.

14. Absentis Ariovisti, “Of Ariovistus, though absent.”

15. Adesset, §208.

16. Horrerent is coordinate with auderent.

Paulatim autem Germanos consuescere¹² Rhenum transire,¹³ et in Galliam magnam eorum multitudinem venire, populo Romano periculosum videbat: neque sibi¹⁴ homines feros ac barbaros temperaturos existimabat, quin,¹⁵ quum omnem Galliam occupassent, ut¹⁶ ante Cimbri Teutonique fecissent,¹⁷ in provinciam exirent, atque inde in Italiam contenderent; præsertim quum Sequanos a provincia nostra Rhodanus divideret.¹⁸ Quibus rebus¹⁹ quam maturime²⁰ occurrendum²¹ putabat. / Ipse autem Ariovistus

17. Tamen. The antecedent clause must be supplied: “although they dreaded him, yet to the rest an opportunity of flight was given.”

18. Sequanis, §145.

XXXIII. 1. Sibi, §143.

2. Curæ §144.

3. Se habere depends on the verb of saying implied in pollicitus est.

4. Adductum, “Influenced both by his kindness and his authority;” §185, 2, a. For the kindness done to Ariovistus see chap. XXXV.

5. Secundum ea, “After these things,” i.e. the statements previously made; or, “In consequence of those things” which he had just learned.

6. Quare. See vocabulary.

7. Sibi limits the gerundives following; §145.

8. Putaret, §210, a; or §214.

9. Fratres consanguineosque are predicate accusatives after the participle appellatos.

10. Quod refers to the condition of the Æduans explained in the noun sentences preceding, and is subject of esse.

11. Sibi et reipublicæ, §142.

12. Germanos consuescere is a noun sentence, logically dependent upon periculosissimum esse, (“that it was a very dangerous thing for the Germans to become accustomed, &c.”) but grammatically its subject, (“that for the Germans to become accustomed, &c., was a very dangerous thing.”)

13. Transire is the complement of consuescere.

14. Sibi is remote object of temperaturos.

15. Quin—in provinciam exirent, atque inde in Italiam contenderent, “From going over into the province, and proceeding thence to Italy.”

16. Ut is a relative; §211, Ex. (c.)

17. Fecissent, §210, c.

18. Rhodanus divideret. Ariovistus, therefore, was very near the province.

19. Quibus rebus is remote object of occurrendum.

20. Quam maturime, “As speedily as possible;” §203, Rem. 1.

21. Occurrendum, “That opposition ought to be made;” §178.

XXXV His responsis ad Cæsarem relatis, iterum ad eum Cæsar legatos cum his mandatis mittit: 'Quoniam, tanto suo populiue Romani beneficio affectus,¹ quum in consulatu suo rex atque amicus² a Senatu appellatus esset,³ hanc sibi populoque Romano gratiam referret,⁴ ut in colloquium venire invitatus⁵ gravaretur,⁶ neque de communi re dicendum⁷ sibi et cognoscendum putaret;⁸ hæc esse, quæ ab eo postularet:⁹ primum,¹⁰ ne quam hominum multitudinem

22. Arrogantiam, §123, Rem. 6.

23. Ut—videretur, "That he seemed unendurable."

XXXIV 1. Postularent, §210, a.

2. Utriusque is partitive genitive;—"midway between them both."

3. Colloquio, §144.

4. Velle sese depends on the verb of saying implied in postularent.

5. Ipsi, §142.

6. Opus esset, §160, Rem. 1. "If anything were needful to him from Cæsar,"—if he wished anything from Cæsar.

7. Ille, Cæsar.

8. Velit. The change from past to present gives greater animation.

9. Illum is subject of venire, and illum venire is grammatically subject of oportere, though logically dependent on it.

10. Possideret, §217, §210, c.

11. Videri, "That it seemed." The subject is quid—esset.

12. Cæsari, §143

13. Negotii limits quid; §134. Rem. 1.

14. Esset, §214.

XXXV 1. Tanto suo populiue Romani beneficio affectus, "After having been treated with so great kindness by himself and the Roman people;" literally "being affected with his own and the Roman people's so great kindness." Suo is subjective, (§431, Rem. 4,) and hence populi is coupled to it by que.

2. Rex atque amicus, §130, 2.

3. Quum—appellatus esset, "In as much as he had been called." §205, a

4. Referret is predicate of the sentence introduced by quoniam; §190. "He made this requital."

5. Invitatus, "When invited;" §185 2, a.

6. Ut gravaretur, &c. is in apposition with hanc gratiam

7. Dicendum sibi et cognoscendum, "That he ought to speak and learn;" §178, Rule, and Rem. 2.

8. Neque—putaret, (¶) and did not think," is coordinate with ut—gravaretur.

9. Hæc esse quæ ab eo postularet, "That these were his demands." The antecedent of quæ is omitted, (§129, Rem. 2,) and the relative sentence then becomes a noun, predicate nominative after esse.

10. Primum limits se postulare understood.

11. Deinde, "Secondly."

12. Quos haberet, §210, c.

13. Redderet sc. ut.

14. Sequanisque permetteret, "And grant to the Sequans."

15. Reddere is subject of liceret, §173. Its object is obsides understood.

16. Neve-lacesseret, neve-inferret are coordinate with (ut) redderet above. Observe that a result may be continued negatively by neque (see neque-putaret above;) but if a purpose is expressed, neve must be used.

17. Fecisset, §197, Rem. 4, §198, a.

18. Sibi, §143.

19. Impetraret sc. quæ postuleret. "If he did not obtain" his demands.

20. M. Messala, M. Pisone consulibus, §186, Rem. 1.

21. Obtineret, §210, b. Quicumque obtineret is subject of defenderet.

22. Quod is the object of facere, and the sentence quod-posset, or the omitted antecedent, is accusative of limitation; §155. "As to that which he could do with advantage to the state," i. e. as far as he could consistently with the advantage of the State.

23. Sese is repeated on account of the long parenthetical sentence which separates sese above from neglecturum

XXXVI. 1. Qui vicissent, "Those who had conquered," "the conquerors;" §217.

2. Iis is remote object of imperarent.

3. Vellent would be velint in ratio recta; §210, b, or §214.

4. Victis, "The conquered," "those who had been conquered;"—limits imperare.

5. Præscriberet, §197, Rem. 4.

6. Jure, §159, Rem. 6.

7. Uteretur agrees with populus Romanus understood; §214.

8. Non oportere, "That it was not right." The subject of oportere is the following noun sentence, se-impediri.

9. Sibi limits stipendiarios; §142.

10. Tentassent, §190.

11. Stipendiarios is part of the predicate;—"had been made tributary."

12. Injuriam facere, "That Cæsar was doing him a great injury."

16. Injuria, "Wrongfully;" abl. of manner.

17. Si id non fecissent, "If they should not do this;" §197, Rem. 4, §198, a.

18. Iis, §163.

19. Quod, "In what respect," "in that," §165. "As to Cæsar's threatening him, &c."

20. Denuntiaret, §210, c.

21. Congredieretur, "Let him meet him;" §217, Rem. 1.

22. Quid is equivalent acc. limiting possent, or facere may be understood.

23. Inter annos quatuordecim, "Within fourteen years;" the preposition is here expressed.

24. Possent, §214.

XXXVII. 1. Eodem tempore limits both referabantur and veniebant.

2. Ædui (legati veniebant) questum, §179, a.

3. Transportati essent, §210, c.

4. Eorum, i. e. the Æduans. The author treats the Æduans simply as the persons spoken of, and not as speaking about themselves; hence the use of eorum instead of suos, which here would be rather ambiguous.

5. Popularentur, §190.

6. Treviri sc. legati nunciaverunt.

7. Ad ripas, &c., "Had come to the banks of the Rhine and encamped there." An example of the constructio pregnans.

8. Iis, §141.

9. Maturandum sibi, "That he ought to make haste." §178, Rule, and Rem. 2.

10. Ne, "For fear that," §c.

11. Conjunxisset, §197, Rem. 4, §198, a.

12. Minus facile resisti posset, "Resistance could less easily be made." Resisti posset is an impersonal expression. resisti being complement of posset;—"it could be less easily resisted."

13. Quam celerrime potuit, "As quickly as he could;" §203, Rem. 1.

XXXVIII. 1. Viam, §150, Rem. 2.

2. Occupandum; a rare instance of a transitive gerund in the accusative with an object; see §177, Rem. 1.

quod³ est oppidum maximum Sequanorum, contendere, triduique viam a suis finibus profecisse. Id ne accideret, magno opere præcavendum sibi⁴ Cæsar existimabat: namque omnium rerum, quæ ad bellum usui⁵ erant, summa erat in eo oppido facultas; idque natura loci sic muniebatur, ut magnam ad ducendum bellum daret facultatem, propterea quod flumen Dubis, ut circino circumductum,⁶ pæne totum oppidum cingit: reliquum spatium, quod est non amplius pedum DC,⁷ qua flumen intermittit, mons continet magna altitudine, ita ut radices⁸ montis ex utraque parte ripæ fluminis contingant. Hunc⁹ murus circumdatus arcem efficit, et cum oppido coniungit. Huc Cæsar magnis nocturnis diurnisque itineribus contendit, occupatoque oppido ibi præsidium collocat.

XXXIX. Dum paucos dies¹ ad Vesontionem rei frumentariæ commeatusque causa moratur, ex percuntatione² nostrorum vocibusque Gallorum ac mercatorum, qui ingenti magnitudine³ corporum Germanos, incredibili virtute³ atque exercitatione in armis esse prædicabant, sæpenumero sese cum eis congressos⁴ ne vultum quidem atque aciem oculorum ferre potuisse, tantus subito timor omnem exercitum occupavit, ut non mediocriter⁵ omnium mentes animosque perturbaret.⁶ Hic⁷ primum ortus est a tribunis militum, præfectis, reliquisque, qui ex urbe amicitiae causa Cæsarem secuti,⁸ magnum periculum miserabantur, quod non magnum in re militari usum⁹ habebant: quorum alius, alia causa illata, quam sibi ad profleiscendum necessariam esse diceret, petebat,¹⁰ ut ejus voluntate

3. Quod agrees with the predicate noun oppidum; §129, Rem 5.

4. Magno opere præcavendum sibi, "That he ought to use the greatest caution;" literally, "that it ought to be guarded against by him with great labor;" §178, Rule, and Rem 2.

5. Usui, §144; "valuable."

6. Ut circino circumductum, "As if drawn around it with a pair of compasses," i.e. "running around it in a circle."

7. Non amplius pedum sexcentorum, i.e. spatium or spatio; "not more than the space of six hundred feet." Pedum DC is genitive of quality.

8. Radices is the object, and ripæ the subject, of contingant.

9. Hunc limits circumdatus; §152, Rem 2: or it may be object of efficit, arcem being second accusative.

2. Ex percuntatione limits occupavit. "In consequence of the enquiry of our men."

3. Ingenti magnitudine forms part of the predicate with esse, §164, Rem 1. "That the Germans were (men) of huge size of body."

4. Congressos, "Having met them," i.e. in battle.

5. Non mediocriter, "Not slightly," i.e. "to a very great degree."

6. Perturbaret &c., "It (the panic) disturbed the minds and courage of all."

7. Hic, "This" panic.

8. Secuti, §185, 2, a.

9. Usum, "experience."

10. Quorum alius &c.—petebat. "One of whom alleging one cause, (and another, another) which he said was an urgent one to him for setting out, was asking, &c." Observe that where we say "one—one; another—another," the Latins use the forms of ali- ius—alius." Sibi above is dative of reference, limiting necessariam. For diceret see §190, Rem. 1.

11. Ut liceret, "That it might be permitted (to him)." Sibi is understood.

12. Vultum fingere, "to control the countenance;" literally, "to feign the countenance."

13. Totis castris, "Throughout the whole camp." §166.

14. Milites centurionesque, quique equitatu præerant forms an apposition to ii, being an enumeration of those who had great experience in camp.

15. Quique, "And those who;" §129, Rem. 2.

16. Equitatu, §48, Rem. 3.

17. Perturbabantur, "Began to be alarmed;" §95, Rem. 4, c.

18. Intercederent, §210, c.

19. Rem frumentariam, which according to the English idiom would be subject of the dependent sentence, is made the object of the verb in the principal sentence.

20. Ut, §193, Rem. 2.

21. Timere is coordinate with vereri, and connected by sed.

22. Quum castra, &c jussisset limits fore, and not renunciabant. "When he should order, &c.;" the completion of the action is here referred to.

23. Dicto audientes, "Obedient to his order"

24. Nec propter timorem signa laturus, "And would not advance, &c."

XL. 1. Omnium ordinum limits centurionibus; §132.

2. Ducerentur, §214.

3. Sibi quærendum aut cogitandum, §178, Rule, and Rem. 2. It was a breach of discipline for a centurion to ask, or even think about, the General's plans.

4. Putarent, §190.

5. Se consule, §186, Rem.

6. Judicaret, §214, Rem. 5. A verb of asking must be supplied, "He asked why any one, &c."

7. Sibi quidem persuaderi, "That he indeed was persuaded;" §172, Rem. 2.

8. Cognitis suis postulatis, "When his demands should be known;" §186.

9. Quod si, "If, however;" §123, Rem. 19.

10. Intulisset, §197, Rem. 4; §198, a.

11. Ipsius refers to Cæsar, while sua refers to the centurions; the latter does not always refer to the leading subject.

12. Factum, &c., periculum, "That a trial had been made."

13. Memoria, §167. This was B.C.100, or about forty years before.

14. Meritis is complement of videbatur, and has laudem for its direct object. "The army seemed having deserved (to have deserved) no less praise, &c." There is a transition here from oblique to direct discourse; hence the indic., videbatur.

15. Factum (esse) sc. periculum.

16. Servili tumultu, "In the insurrection of the slaves;" §167. Many of Spartacus's men were Germans. He was defeated B.C. 71.

17. Quos refers to servorum implied in servili; §129, Rem. 7.

18. Aliquid, "Somewhat," limits sublevarent; §155.

19. Acceperissent, sublevarent, §217, §210, c.

20. Haberet; §214.

21. Boni limits quantum, §134, Rem. 1; and quantum is direct object of haberet.

22. Inermos, "When unarmed."

23. Hos, i. e. the slaves.

24. Armatos ac victores superassent. "They had afterwards conquered when armed and victorious."

25. Quibuscum Helvetii congressi, &c. Observe the difference of idiom:

Latin, "With whom the Helvetii having frequently met, generally conquered (them.)"

English, "Whom the Helvetii had frequently met, and had usually conquered."

26. Superarunt, (for superaverint.) and potuerint are aorist perfects.

27. Exercitu, §48, Rem. 3, is dative of reference.

28. Commoveret, §197, Rem. 4. Gallorum limits both prælium and fuga.

29. Defatigatis Gallis, "After the Gauls had been wearied out, &c."

30. Quum—tenuisset, "When he had kept himself, &c." This sentence may express the time of adortum, or the cause of desperantes.

31. Neque sui potestatem fecisset, "And had not given (them) a chance at him," i. e. an opportunity of fighting him. Sui is objective.

32. Adortum agrees with Ariovistum, (§185, 2, a.) and has eos understood as its object, with which desperantes and dispersos agree.

virtute vicisset. Cui rationi contra homines barbaros atque imperitos locus fuisset,³³ hac ne ipsum quidem sperare nostros exercitus capi posse.³⁴ Qui³⁵ suum timorem in rei frumentariæ simulationem angustiasque itineris conferrent, facere arroganter, quum³⁶ aut de officio imperatoris desperare aut præscribere viderentur. Quod³⁹ non fore dicto audientes milites, neque signa latu- ri dicantur,⁴⁰ nihil se ea re commoveri: scire enim, quibuscumque exercitus dicto audiens non fuerit,⁴¹ aut, male re gesta,⁴² fortunam defuisse, aut, aliquo facinore comperto, avaritiam esse convictam.⁴³ Suam innocentiam perpetua vita,⁴⁴ felicitatem Helvetiorum bello⁴⁵ esse perspectam. Itaque se, quod⁴⁶ in longiorem diem collaturus⁴⁷ esset, representaturum, ex proxima nocte de quarta vigilia castra moturum, ut quam primum⁴⁸ intelligere posset, utrum apud eos pudor atque officium, an timor valeret.⁴⁹ Quod si præterea nemo sequatur,⁵⁰ tamen se cum sola decimâ legione iturum, de qua non dubitaret;⁵¹ sibi- que eam prætoriam cohortem futuram.⁵² Huic legioni⁵³ Cæsar et indulserat præcipue, et propter virtutem confidebat maxime.

33. Fuisset, §217. "For which general-ship there had been room: &c."

34. Hac ne ipsum quidem, &c., "That not even (Ariovistus) himself hoped that our armies could be taken by it."

35. Qui, &c., "That (those) who charged their fear upon a pretense (of the want) of provisions, &c." This relative sentence, or its omitted antecedent, is subject of facere.

36. Quum, "Since."

37. Hæc sibi esse curæ, "That this was his business." Sibi §143; curæ, §141.

38. Brevi tempore, §153, Note.

39. Quod, see XXXVI. 19.

40. Dicantur. The personal construction is used here, milites being subject of dicantur, and fore its complement. Esse must be supplied (from fore.) with latu- ri. "In what respect the soldiers are said not to be about to be obedient, and not to be going to advance, &c.," "as to its being said that the soldiers will not be obedient, and will not advance, that he is in no wise alarmed by that thing." Nihil is acc. of limitation, §155.

41. Quibuscumque exercitus, &c., fuerit, "To whomsoever an army has not been obedient." Quibuscumque limits audiens dicto, §142; and the relative sentence, or its omitted antecedent, is the remote object of defuisse and convictam.

42. Male re gesta, "In consequence of bad management;" §186.

43. Avaritiam esse convictam, "Avarice has been proved upon (them)." The pronoun must be supplied in English. Cæsar attributes insubordination among the men to incompetency or peculation on the part of officers.

44. Perpetua vita, "Throughout his whole life;" §153.

45. Bello, §167.

46. Quod, §129, Rem. 2.

47. Collaturus §185, 3, a.

48. Quam primum, "As soon as possible;" §203, Rem. 1.

49. Valeret, "Prevailed;" §214.

50. Quod si, &c.,—sequatur, "And if nobody else followed him." The present is here used to give greater animation.

51. Dubitaret, §217.

52. Sibi- que eam prætoriam cohortem futuram, "And that he would have it for a body guard;" §144, Rem. 2. Sibi, §143.

53. Legioni, §142.

XLI. Hac oratione habita, mirum in modum¹ conversæ sunt omnium mentes, summaque alacritas et cupiditas belli gerendi² innata est, princepsque³ decima legio per tribunos militum ei gratias egit, quod de se optimum iudicium fecisset,⁴ seque esse ad bellum gerendum⁵ paratissimam confirmavit. Deinde reliquæ legiones per tribunos militum et primorum ordinum⁶ centuriones egerunt,⁷ uti Cæsari satisfacerent: 'se neque unquam dubitasse, neque timuisse, neque de summa belli suum iudicium, sed imperatoris esse existimavisse.'⁸ Eorum satisfactione accepta, et itinere exquisito per Divitiacum,⁹ quod ex aliis ei maximam fidem habebat, ut millium amplius quinquaginta¹⁰ circuitu locis apertis¹¹ exercitum duceret, de quarta vigilia, ut dixerat,¹¹ profectus est. Septimo die, quum iter non intermitteret, ab exploratoribus certior factus est Ariovisti copias a nostris millibus¹² passuum quatuor et viginti abesse.

XLII. Cognito Cæsaris adventu, Ariovistus legatos ad eum mittit: 'quod antea de colloquio postulasset, id per se fieri licere,¹ quoniam propius accessisset;² seque id sine periculo facere posse existimare.'³ Non respuit conditionem Cæsar: jamque eum ad sanitatem reverti arbitrabatur, quum id, quod antea petenti denegasset,⁴ ultro polliceretur;⁵ magnamque in spem veniebat, pro⁶ suis tantis populique Romani in eum beneficiis, cognitis suis postulatis, fore,⁷ uti pertinacia⁸ desisteret. Dies colloquio⁹ dictus est ex eo die quintus. Interim, quum sæpe ultro citroque legati inter eos mitterentur, Ariovistus postulavit, 'ne quem peditem ad colloquium Cæsar adduceret: vereri se, ne¹⁰ per insidias ab eo circumveniretur; uterque cum equitatu veniret.'¹¹ alia ratione se non esse venturum.'

XLI. 1. Mirum in modum, "To a wonderful extent;" literally, "to a wonderful limit."

2. Belli gerendi, §177.

3. Princeps, §125, Rem. 9.

4. Fecisset, §190.

5. Primorum ordinum, §132.

6. Egerunt, "They took measures."

7. Neque de summa belli, &c.,—existimavisse, "Nor had they supposed that it was their business, but the general's, to determine about the management of the war;" literally, "that a judgement concerning the management of the war was not theirs, but the general's." For imperatoris see §133; for suum, §183, Rem. 1.

8. Per Divitiacum, §159, Rem. 5.

9. Millium amplius quinquaginta, §182, §165 Rem. 4.

10. Locis apertis, §166.

11. Ut, "As;" §211, Ex. (e.).

12. Millibus, §152.

XLII. 1. Id per se fieri licere, "That that might be done by him." Id is subject of fieri; and id fieri is grammatically subject of licere, though logically dependant upon it.

2. Accessisset, §190.

3. Seque &c.—existimare. Se is subject of posse, and is understood with existimare. Its repetition would be inelegant.

4. Quod antea petenti denegasset, "Which he had before denied to him when he (Cæsar) asked it."

5. Polliceretur, §205, a.

6. Pro, "In consideration of."

7. Fore, "That it would come to pass."

8. Pertinacia, §163.

9. Colloquio, §144.

10. Ne after vereri, §193, Rem. 2.

11. Veniret, §193, Rem. 6.

Cæsar, quod neque colloquium interposita causa tolli volebat, neque salutem suam Gallorum equitatu¹² committere audebat, commodissimum esse¹³ statuit, omnibus equis Gallis equitibus detractis,¹⁴ eo¹⁵ legionarios milites legionis decimæ, cui quam maxime confidebat, imponere, ut præsidium quam amicissimum,¹⁶ si quid opus facto esset,¹⁷ haberet. 17. Si quid opus facto esset, "If in any respect there should be need of action." Quid, §155. Facto is here used as a noun; §160, Rem. 1.

18. Pollicitus esset, §217.

19. Ad equum rescribere. The knight, (equus) was of a higher social rank than the common soldier who fought on foot; and though the strength of the Roman armies lay in the infantry, and not in the cavalry, which were usually furnished by the allies, the rank of the Roman eques remained the same.

2. Ut erat dictum, §211, Ex. (e.)

3. Passibus ducentis, §163.

Romani amicitiam, quam appetierit.¹⁵ Quod¹⁶ multitudinem Germanorum in Galliam transducat, id se sui muniendi,¹⁷ non Galliæ impugnandæ causa facere; ejus rei testimonium esse, quod, nisi rogatus, non venerit,¹⁸ et quod bellum non intulerit, sed defenderit. Se prius in Galliam venisse, quam populum Romanum.¹⁹ Nunquam ante hoc tempus exercitum populi Romani Galliæ provinciæ fines egressum. Quid sibi vellent?²⁰ Cur in suas possessiones veniret? Provinciæ suam esse hanc Galliam, sicut illam²¹ nostram. Ut ipsi concedi non oporteret,²² si in nostros fines impetum faceret. Sic item nos esse iniquos, qui in suo jure se interpellaremus.²³ Quod¹⁶ fratres a senatu Æduos appellatos diceret, non se tam barbarum neque tam imperitum esse rerum,²⁴ ut non sciret, neque bello²⁵ Allobrogum proximo Æduos Romanis auxilium tulisse, neque ipsos in his contentionibus, quas Ædui secum et cum Sequanis habuissent, auxilio²⁶ populi Romani usos esse. Debere se suspicari, simulata Cæsarem amicitia,²⁷ quod exercitum in Gallia habeat, sui opprimendi¹⁷ causa habere.²⁸ Qui nisi decedat,²⁹ atque exercitum deducat ex his regionibus, sese illum non pro amico, sed pro hoste habiturum: quod si eum interfecerit,³⁰ multis sese nobilibus principibusque populi Romani gratum esse facturum: id se ab ipsis per eorum nuncios compertum habere,³¹ quorum omnium gratiam atque amicitiam ejus morte redimere posset. 18. Quod, nisi rogatus, non venerit, "Than he has not come except when asked."

19. Quam populum Romanum; observe that the complement of the comparative prius is here connected by quam in the same construction as se venisse.

20. Quid sibi vellent sc. Cæsar. "What did he want with (reference to) him."

21. Sicut illam nostram. "Just as that (part of Gaul) was ours." Ariovistus uses hic in speaking of his own possessions, illam in speaking of those of the Romans. In the comparative sentence sicut illam nostram, the verb is omitted, and illam is connected immediately with suam esse hanc Galliam, as in the case of quam populum Romanum above. Had the verb been expressed the nominative would have been used; sicut illa esset nostra.

22. Ut ipsi concedi non oporteret, "As it ought not to be yielded to him." Ut is here a relative, sic below being its antecedent. Ipsi is used instead of sibi to prevent ambiguity, and for emphasis.

XLVI. Dum hæc in colloquio geruntur, Cæsari nunciatum est equites Ariovisti propius tumultum¹ accedere et ad nostros adequitare, lapides telaque in nostros conjicere. Cæsar loquendi finem fecit, seque ad suos recepit, suisque imperavit, ne quod omnino telum in hostes rejicerent.² Nam etsi sine ullo periculo legionis³ delectæ cum equitatu prælium fore videbat, tamen committendum⁴ non putabat, ut,⁵ pulsis hostibus, dici posset⁶ eos ab se per fidem⁷ in colloquio circumventos. castra Cæsaris suas copias transduxit, et millibus¹ passuum duobus ultra eum castra fecit, eo consilio, uti frumento commeatuque,² qui⁴ ex Sequanis et Æduis supportaretur,³ Cæsarem intercluderet. Ex eo die dies continuos⁵ quinque Cæsar pro castris suas copias produxit, et aciem instructam habuit, ut, si vellet⁷ Ariovistus prælio contendere, ei potestas non decisset. Ariovistus his omnibus diebus⁸ exercitum castris⁹ continuit; equestri prælio quotidie contendit. Genus hoc erat pugnae, quo se Germani exercuerant. Equitum millia erant sex; totidem numero¹⁰ pedites velocissimi ac fortissimi; quos¹¹ ex omni copia singuli singulos¹¹ suae salutis causa delegerant. Cum his in præliis versabantur, ad hos se equites recipiebant: hi, si quid erat durius, concurrebant: si qui,¹² graviore vulnere accepto, equo¹³ deciderat, circumstitebant: si quo erat longius prodeundum, aut celerius recipiendum,¹⁴ tanta erat horum exercitatione celeritas, ut, iubis equorum sublevati, cursum adæquarent.

Ipse a dextro cornu, quod eam partem minime firmam hostium esse animum adverterat,² prælium commisit. Ita nostri acriter in hostes, signo dato, impetum fecerunt, itaque³ hostes repente celeriterque procurerunt; ut spatium pila in hostes conijciendi non daretur. Rejectis pilis, cominus gladiis pugnatum est: at Germani, celeriter ex consuetudine sua⁴ phalange facta, impetus gladiatorum exceperunt. Reperti sunt complures nostri milites,⁵ qui in phalanges insilirent,⁶ et scuta manibus revellerent, et desuper vulnerarent. DE BELLO GALLICO

LIBER II.

I. QUUM esset Cæsar in citeriore Gallia in hibernis,¹ ita uti supra demonstravimus,² crebri ad eum rumores afferebantur, literisque item Labieni certior fiebat omnes Belgas, quam³ tertiam esse alliæ partem dixeramus, contra populum Romanum conjurare, osidesque inter se dare. Conjurandi has esse causas: primum, ne⁴ vererentur,⁵ ne⁶ omni pacata Gallia, ad eos exercitus noster adduceretur: deinde, quod ab nonnullis Gallis sollicitarentur,⁴ partim⁶ qui, ut⁷ Germanos diutius in Gallia versari noluerant, ita populi Romani exercitum hiemare atque inveterascere in Gallia moleste rebant; partim⁶ qui mobilitate et levitate⁸ animi novis imperiis⁹ studebant: ab nonnullis etiam, quod in Gallia a potentioribus atque his, qui ad conducendos¹⁰ homines facultates habebant, vulgo regna occupabantur,¹¹ qui minus facile eam rem in imperio nostro consequi poterant.

II. His nunciis literisque commotus Cæsar duas legiones in citeriore Gallia novas conscripsit; et inita æstate, in interiorem Galliam qui deduceret,¹ Q. Pedium legatum misit. Ipse, quum primum² abuli copia esse inciperet, ad exercitum venit; dat negotium Senonibus³ reliquisque Gallis, qui finitimi Belgis erant, uti ea, quæ apud eos gerantur,⁴ cognoscant, seque de his rebus certiores⁵ faciant.

NOTES

I. In hibernis. "During the winter quarters," i.e. while the army was in winter quarters. See Book I, LIV. Ita uti supra demonstravimus, "As we have shown above." The antecedent of ita is ita; §211, Ex. (a.) Quum, §129, Rem. 5. Quod vererentur, §190. Ne, §193, Rem. 2. Partim qui, "Some of whom;" or supplying ab his, "Partly by those who." Partim is an old accusative of pars, usually called an adverb; it is in fact an acc. of limitation: "Who in respect to a part." This enumeration is made by the Author, and not by his informers: hence the indica-

7. Ut. "As." Its antecedent is ita below.

nes Belgas amplificaturum : quorum auxiliis atque opibus, si qua bella inciderint,² sustentare consuerint.³

XV. Cæsar honoris Divitiaci atque Æduorum causa 'sese eos in eundem recepturum et conservaturum' dixit : sed, quod erat civitas magna inter Belgas auctoritate,¹ atque hominum multitudine² præstabat, DC obsides poposcit. His traditis, omnibusque armis ex oppido collatis, ab eo loco in fines Ambianorum pervenit, qui se suaque omnia sine mora dederunt. Eorum fines Nervii attingebant : quorum de natura moribusque Cæsar quum quæreretur, sic reperiebat : 'Nullum aditum esse ad eos mercatoribus :³ nihil pati vini reliquarumque rerum ad luxuriam pertinentium inferri,⁴ quod his rebus relanguescere animos eorum, et remitti virtutem existimarent.⁵ esse⁶ homines feros magnæque virtutis : increpitare atque incusare reliquos Belgas, qui se populo Romano dedidissent, patriamque virtutem projecissent : confirmare sese neque legatos missuros, neque ullam conditionem pacis accepturos.'

XVI. Quum per eorum fines triduum¹ iter fecisset, inveniebat ex captivis Sabim flumen ab castris suis non amplius² millia passuum decem abesse : trans id flumen omnes Nervios consedissee, adventumque ibi Romanorum expectare una cum Atrebatibus et Veromanduis, finitimis suis : (nam his³ utrisque persuaserant, uti eandem belli fortunam experirentur :) expectari etiam ab his Aduatucorum copias, atque esse in itinere : mulieres quique⁴ per ætatem ad pugnam inutiles viderentur, in eum locum coniecisse, quo propter paludes exercitui aditus non esset.⁵

DE BELLO GALLICO

LIBER III

I. QUUM in Italiam proficisceretur Cæsar, Servium Galbam cum legione duodecima et parte equitatus in Nantuates, Veragros Sedunosque misit, qui ab finibus Allobrogum et lacu Lemanno et flumine Rhodano ad summam¹ Alpes pertinent. Causa mittendi fuit, quod iter per Alpes, quo² magno cum periculo magnisque cum portoriis mercatores ire consueverant, pateferi volebat. Huic permisit, si opus esse arbitraretur,³ uti in eis locis legionem hiemandi causa collocaret. Galba, secundis aliquot præliis factis, castellisque compluribus eorum⁴ expugnatis, missis ad eum undique legatis, obsidibusque datis, et pace facta, constituit cohortes duas in Nantuatibus collocare, et ipse⁵ cum reliquis ejus legionis cohortibus in vico Veragrorum, qui appellatur Octodurus, hiemare: qui vicus, positus in valle, non magna adjecta planitie, altissimis montibus undique continetur. Quum⁶ hic in duas partes flumine divideretur, alteram partem ejus vici Gallis concessit; alteram, vacuum⁷ ab illis relictam, cohortibus ad hiemandum attribuit. Eum locum vallo fossaque munivit.

II. Quum dies hibernorum complures transissent, frumentumque eo comportari jussisset, subito per exploratores certior factus est, ex ea parte vici, quam Gallis concesserat, omnes noctu discessisse, montesque, qui impenderent,¹ a maxima multitudine Sedunorum et Veragrorum teneri. Id² aliquot de causis acciderat, ut subito Galli belli renovandi legionisque opprimendæ³ consilium caperent: primum, quod legionem, neque eam plenissimam,⁴ detractis

NOTES

1. 1. Summas, §128, Rem. 8.

2. Quo, "Along which;" abl. of place.

3. Arbitraretur, §197, Rem. 4. Opus esse is impersonal;—"that it was necessary."

4. Compluribus castellis eorum, "Many of their towers;" literally, "Many towers of them."

5. Ipse agrees with the subject of constituit, but limits hiemare; "And himself, with the rest of the cohorts, &c., to winter, &c."

6. Quum, "Since."

7. Vacuum is predicate after relictam, the two constituting one idea, and agreeing with alteram.

II. 1. Qui impenderent is rather the statement of Crassus than of the author.

2. Id is used as an introduction to the noun-sentence ut—caperent.

3. Opprimendæ, §177.

4. Neque eam plenissimam, "And that not a very full (one)."

cohortibus duabus, et compluribus singillatim, qui commeatus petendi² causa missi erant, absentibus,³ propter paucitatem despiciebant: tum etiam, quod propter iniquitatem loci, quum ipsi ex montibus in vallem decurrerent, et tela conjicerent,⁴ ne primum quidem posse impetum suum sustineri existimabant. Accedebat, quod⁵ suos ab se liberos abstractos obsidum nomine dolebant; et Romanos non solum itinerum causa, sed etiam perpetuæ possessionis culmina Alpium occupare conari, et ea loca finitimæ provinciæ adjungere, sibi persuasum habebant.⁶

III. His nunciis acceptis, Galba, quum neque opus hibernorum munitionesque plene essent perfectæ, neque de frumento reliquoque commeatu satis esset provisum, quod, deditiōe facta obsidibusque acceptis, nihil de bello timendum¹ existimaverat, consilio celeriter convocato, sententias exquirere cœpit. Quo in consilio, quum tantum repentini periculi præter opinionem accidisset, ac jam omnia fere superiora loca multitudine² armatorum completa³ conspicerentur, neque subsidio veniri,⁴ neque commeatus supportari interclasis itineribus possent,⁵ prope jam desperata salute, nonnullæ hujusmodi sententiæ dicebantur, ut, impedimentis relictis, eruptione facta, iisdem itineribus, quibus eo pervenissent, ad salutem contenderent. Majori tamen parti placuit, hoc reservato ad extremum consilio, interim rei eventum experiri, et castra defendere.

IV Brevi spatio interjecto, vix ut¹ his rebus,² quas constituissent,³ collocandis atque administrandis tempus daretur, hostes ex omnibus partibus, signo dato, decurrere, lapides gæsaque in vallum conjicere:⁴ nostri primo integris viribus⁵ fortiter repugnare,⁴ neque ullum frustra telum ex loco superiore mittere:⁴ ut⁶ quæque pars

5. Detrahitur duabus cohortibus et compluribus absentibus. These sentences limit despiciebant. The legion was not full at first, and after two cohorts had been withdrawn, it was of course still weaker.

6. Decurrerent,—conjicerent, "Would run down,—would throw."

7. Quod, "That," introduces a noun-sentence, subject of accedebat.

8. Sibi persuasum habebant, "Deemed it certain;" literally, "had it as a thing persuaded to themselves."

III. 1. Timendum (esse), "That nothing was to be feared concerning war," i.e. that there was no danger of war.

2. Multitudine, §160.

3. Completa is predicate nominative.

4. Neque subsidio veniri (posset), "And it could neither be come (to them) for aid," i.e. aid could not be brought to them. Subsidio, §44.

5. Commeatus possent. Observe the close connection of the personal with the impersonal construction. All these sentences are causal, coordinate with quum accidisset.

IV. 1. Ut, "So that." Vix limits daretur.

2. Rebus collocandis, &c., §144.

3. Quas constituissent, See Book II, XXVII, 1.

4. Decurrere,—conjicere, &c., §175.

5. Integris viribus, "While their strength was fresh," §186, Rem. 1.

P. Sextius Ba. ulus, primipili centurio, quem Nervio proelio compluribus confectum² vulneribus diximus, et item C. Volusenus, tribunus militum, vir et consilii magni et virtutis,³ ad Galbam accurrunt, atque unam esse spem salutis docent, si, eruptione facta, extremum auxilium experirentur⁴. Itaque, convocatis centurionibus, celeriter milites certiores⁵ facit, paulisper intermitterent⁶ proelium, ac tantummodo tela missa exciperent, seque ex labore reficerent: post, dato signo, ex castris erumperent,⁶ atque omnem spem salutis in virtute ponerent.

VI Quod jussi sunt, faciunt; ac subito omnibus portis¹ eruptione facta, neque cognoscendi, quid fieret,² neque sui colligendi³ hostibus facultatem relinquunt. Ita commutata fortuna, eos, qui in spem potiundorum castrorum⁴ venerant, unisque circumventos interficiunt; et ex hominum millibus amplius triginta, quem numerum barbarorum ad castra venisse constabat, plus⁵ tertia parte interfecta, reliquos perterritos in fugam conjiciunt, ac ne in locis quidem superioribus consistere patiuntur. Sic, omnibus hostium copiis fuis armisque⁶ exutis, se in castra munitionesque suas recipiunt. Quo proelio facto, quod sæpius fortunam tentare Galba nolebat, atque

VII. His rebus gestis, quum¹ omnibus de causis Cæsar pacatam Galliam existimaret, superatis, Belgis, expulsis Germanis, victis in Alpibus Sedunis, atque ita² inīta hieme in Illyricum profectus esset, quod eas quoque nationes adire et regiones cognoscere volebat, subitum bellum in Gallia coortum est. Ejus belli hæc fuit causa. P. Crassus adolescens cum legione septima proximus mare Oceanum³ in Andibus hiemarāt. Is, quod in his locis inopia frumenti erat, præfectos tribunosque militum complures in finitimas civitates frumenti commeatusque petendi causa dimisit: quo in numero erat T. Ad quarum initium silvarum quum Cæsar pervenisset, castraque munire instituisset, neque hostis interim visus esset, dispersis in opere nostris, subito ex omnibus partibus silvæ evolaverunt, et in nostros impetum fecerunt. Nostri celeriter arma ceperunt, eosque in silvas repulerunt; et, compluribus interfectis, longius impeditioribus locis secuti,⁴ paucos ex suis deperdiderunt.

XXIX. Reliquis deinceps diebus Cæsar silvas cædere instituit; et, ne quis inermibus imprudentibusque¹ militibus ab latere impetitus fieri posset, omnem eam materiam, quæ erat cæsa, conversam ad hostem collocabat, et pro vallo ad utrumque latus exstruebat. hostes propelli ac submoveri jussit: quæ res magno usui⁴ nostris⁵ fuit. Nam et navium figura et remorum motu et inusitato genere tormentorum permoti barbari constiterunt, ac paulum³ modo pedem retulerunt. Atque nostris militibus cunctantibus, maxime propter altitudinem maris, qui decimæ legionis aquilam ferebat, contestatus deos, ut ea res legioni feliciter eveniret: "Desilite," inquit, "commilitones, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prodere:⁶ ego certe meum reipublicæ atque imperatori officium præstitero."⁷ Hoc quum magna voce dixisset, ex navi se projecit, atque in hostes aquilam ferre cœpit. Tum nostri, cohortati inter se, ne tantum dedecus admitteretur, universi ex navi desiluerunt: hos item alii ex proximis navibus quum conspexissent, subsequuti hostibus appropinquantur.

XXVI. Pugnatum est ab utrisque acriter; nostri tamen, quod neque ordines servare, neque firmiter insistere, neque signa subsequi poterant, atque alius alia ex navi,¹ quibuscumque signis occurrerat, se aggregabat,² magno opere perturbabantur. Hostes vero, notis omnibus vadis, ubi ex litore aliquos singulares ex navi egredientes conspexerant, incitatis equis impeditos adoriebantur: plures paucos circumsistebant: alii ab latere aperto in universos tela conjiciebant. Quod quum animadvertisset Cæsar, scaphas longarum navium, item speculatoria navigia militibus compleri jussit, et quos laborantes conspexerat, iis subsidia submittebat. Nostri simul³ in arido constiterunt, suis omnibus consecutis, in hostes impetum fecerunt, atque eos in fugam dederunt; neque longius prosequi poterunt, quod equites cursum tenere atque insulam capere non poterant. Hoc unum ad pristinam fortunam Cæsari defuit.⁴ ✓ et, quod omnibus constabat, hiemare in Gallia oportere, frumentum his in locis in hiemem⁵ provisum non erat.

XXVII. Hostes prælio superati, simul atque¹ se ex fuga receperunt, statim ad Cæsarem legatos de pace miserunt: "Obsides daturos, quæque imperasset,² sese facturos" polliciti sunt. rant, atque in vincula conjecerant: tum, prælio facto, remiserunt, et in petenda pace ejus rei culpam in multitudinem contulerunt, et propter imprudentiam ut ignosceretur, petiverunt. Cæsar questus quod, quum ultro in continentem legatis missis pacem ab se petissent, bellum sine causa intulissent, ignoscere imprudentiæ⁶ dixit, obsidesque imperavit: quorum illi partem statim dederunt, partem, ex longinquiore locis arcessitam, paucis diebus sese daturos dixerunt. Interea suos remigrare in agros jusserunt, principesque undique convenire, et se civitatesque suas Cæsari commendare cœperunt.

XXX. Quibus rebus cognitis, principes Britanniae, qui post praelium factum¹ ad ea, quae jusserat Cæsar, facienda convenerant, inter se collocti, quum equites et naves et frumentum Romanis deesse intelligerent, et paucitatem militum ex castrorum exiguitate cognoscerent, quae hoc erant etiam² angustiora, quod sine impedimentis Cæsar legiones transportaverat, optimum factu esse duxerunt,³ rebellionem facta, frumento⁴ commeatuque nostros prohibere et rem in hiemem producere, quod, iis superatis aut reditu⁴ interclusis, neminem postea belli inferendi causa in Britanniam transiturum confidebant.

XXXI. Itaque, rursus conjuratione facta, paulatim ex castris discedere ac suos clam ex agris deducere coeperunt. At Cæsar, etsi nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen et ex eventu navium suarum, et ex eo, quod obsides dare intermiserant, fore id, quod accidit, suspicabatur. Itaque ad omnes casus subsidia comparabat: nam et frumentum ex agris quotidie in castra conferebat, et quae gravissime afflictæ erant naves, earum materia atque ære ad reliquas reficiendas utebatur, et quæ¹ ad eas res erant usui,² ex continenti comportari jubebat. Itaque, quum id summo studio a militibus administraretur, duodecim navibus amissis, reliquis³ ut navigari commode posset,⁴ effecit.

Dum ea geruntur, legione ex consuetudine una frumentatum missa, quæ appellabatur septima, neque ulla ad id tempus belli suspicione interposita, quum pars hominum in agris remaneret, pars etiam in castra ventitaret, ii, qui pro portis castrorum in statione erant, Cæsari renunciarunt pulverem majorem, quam consuetudo ferret,¹ in ea parte videri, quam in partem legio iter fecisset. Cæsar, id quod erat,² suspicatus aliquid novi a barbaris initum consilii,³ cohortes, quæ in stationibus erant, secum in eam partem proficisci, duas ex reliquis in stationem succedere, reliquas armari⁴ et confestim sese subsequi jussit. castris processisset, suos ab hostibus premi atque ægre sustinere et conferta legione ex omnibus partibus tela conjici animum advertit. Nam quod, omni ex reliquis partibus demesso frumento, pars una erat reliqua, suspicati hostes huc nostros esse venturos, noctu in silvis delituerant: tum dispersos, depositis armis, in metendo occupatos subito adorti, paucis interfectis, reliquos incertis ordinibus⁵ perturbaverant: simul equitatu atque essedis circumdederant. ✓

XXXIII. Ita mobilitatem equitum, stabilitatem peditum in præliis præstant, ac tantum usu quotidiano et exercitatione efficiunt, uti in declivi ac præcipiti loco incitatos equos sustinere³ et brevi⁴ moderari ac flectere, et per temonem percurrere et in iugo insistere et inde se in currus citissime recipere consuerint.

XXXIV Quibus rebus,¹ perturbatis nostris novitate pugnae, tempore opportunissimo Cæsar auxilium tulit: namque ejus adventu hostes constiterunt, nostri se ex timore receperunt. Quo facto, ad lacesendum et ad committendum prælium alienum² esse tempus arbitratus, suo se loco³ continuit, et brevi tempore intermisso, in castra legiones reduxit. Dum hæc geruntur, nostris omnibus occupatis, qui erant in agris reliqui, discesserunt. Secutæ sunt continuos complures dies tempestates, quæ⁴ et nostros in castris continerent, et hostem a pugna prohiberent. Interim barbari nuncios in omnes partes dimiserunt, paucitatemque nostrorum militum suis prædicaverunt, et quanta prædæ faciendæ atque in perpetuum sui liberandi⁵ facultas daretur,⁶ si Romanos castris expulissent,⁷ demonstraverunt. XXXV. Cæsar, etsi idem, quod superioribus diebus acciderat, fore videbat, ut, si essent hostes pulsī, celeritate periculum effugerent; tamen nactus equites circiter triginta, quos Commius Atrebas, de quo ante dictum est, secum transportaverat, legiones in acie pro castris constituit. Commisso prælio, diutius nostrorum militum impetum hostes ferre non potuerunt, ac terga verterunt. Quos tanto spatio¹ secuti, quantum² cursu et viribus efficere potuerunt, complures ex iis occiderunt; deinde, omnibus³ longe lateque afflictis, incensisque, se in castra receperunt. ✓

XXXVI. Eodem die legati, ab hostibus missi ad Cæsarem de pace, venerunt. His Cæsar numerum obsidum, quem antea imperaverat, duplicavit, eosque in continentem adduci jussit, quod, propinqua diē æquinoctii, infirmis navibus, hienī navigationem subjiciendam non existimabat. Ipse, idoneam tempestatem nactus, paulo¹ post mediam noctem naves solvit, quæ omnes incolumes ad continentem pervenerunt; sed ex his onerariæ duæ eosdem, quos reliquæ, portus capere² non potuerunt, et paulo infra delatæ sunt Quum illi orbe facto sese defenderent, celeriter ad clamorem hominum² circiter millia VI convenerunt. Quā re nunciata, Cæsar omnem ex castris equitatum suis auxilio³ misit. Interim nostri milites impetum hostium sustinuerunt, atque amplius horis quatuor fortissime pugnauerunt, et, paucis vulneribus acceptis, complures ex iis occiderunt. Postea vèro quam equitatus noster in conspectum venit, hostes abjectis armis terga verterunt, magnusque eorum numerus est occisus.

I. LUCIO DOMITIO, Appio Claudio consulibus, discedens ab hibernis Cæsar in Italiam, ut quotannis facere consuevit, legatis imperat, quos legionibus præfecerat, uti, quam plurimas possent,¹ hieme naves ædificandas, veteresque reficiendas curarent.² Earum modum formamque demonstrat. Ad celeritatem onerandi subduccionesque³ paulo facit humiliores,⁴ quam quibus⁵ in nostro mari uti consuevimus; atque id⁶ eo magis, quod propter crebras commutationes æstuum minus magnos ibi fluctus fieri cognoverat: ad onera et ad multitudinem jumentorum transportandam paulo latiores,⁷ quam quibus in reliquis utimur maribus. Has omnes acturias⁸ imperat fieri, quam ad rem multum humilitas adjuvat. Ea, quæ sunt usui⁹ ad armandas naves, ex Hispania apportari jubet. Ipse, conventibus Galliæ citerioris peractis, in Illyricum proficiscitur, quod a Pirustis finitimam partem provinciæ incursionibus vastari audiebat. Eo quum venisset, civitatibus milites imperat, certumque in locum convenire jubet. Qua re nunciata, Pirustæ legatos ad eum mittunt, qui doceant¹⁰ 'nihil earum rerum publico factum consilio, seseque paratos esse' demonstrant 'omnibus rationibus de injuriis satisfacere.' Accepta oratione eorum, Cæsar obsides imperat, eosque ad certam diem adduci jubet: nisi ita fecerint,¹¹ sese bello

II. His confectis rebus, conventibusque peractis, in ceteriorem Galliam revertitur, atque inde ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eo quum venisset, circuitis omnibus hibernis, singulavi militum studio, in summa omnium rerum inopia, circiter DC ejus generis, cujus¹ supra demonstravimus, naves et longas² XXVIII invenit instructas, neque multum abesse ab eo,³ quin paucis diebus deduci possent. III. Hæc civitas longe plurimum¹ totius Galliæ equitatu² valet, magnasque habet copias peditum, Rhenumque, ut supra demonstravimus, tangit. In ea civitate duo de principatu inter se contendebant, Indutiomarus et Cingetorix: ex quibus alter, simul atque de Cæsaris legionumque adventu cognitum est, ad eum venit; se suosque omnes in officio futuros, neque ab amicitia Populi Romani defecturos confirmavit, quæque³ in Treviris gererentur, ostendit. At Indutiomarus equitatum peditatumque cogere, iisque qui per ætatem in armis esse non poterant, in silvam Arduennam abditis, quæ ingenti magnitudine⁴ per medios fines Trevirorum a flumine Rheno ad initium Remorum pertinet, bellum parare instituit. Sed postea quam nonnulli principes ex ea civitate, et familiaritate Cingetorigis adducti, et adventu nostri exercitus perterriti, ad Cæsarem venerunt, et de suis privatim rebus ab eo petere cœperunt, quoniam civitati⁵ consulere non possent,⁶ Indutiomarus veritus, ne ab omnibus desereretur,⁷ legatos ad Cæsarem mittit: 'Sese idcirco ab suis discedere, atque ad eum venire noluisse, quos³ facilius civitatem in officio contineret, ne omnis nobilitatis discessu plebs propter imprudentiam laboretur. Itaque esse civitatem in sua potestate, seque, si Cæsar permitteret, ad eum in castra venturum, et suas civitatisque fortunas ejus fidei permissurum.⁴

IV. Cæsar, etsi intelligebat, qua de causa ea dicerentur,¹ quæque eam res ab instituto consilio deterreret,² tamen, ne æstatem in Treviris consumere cogeretur, omnibus ad Britannicum bellum rebus comparatis, Indutiomarum ad se cum ducentis obsidibus venire jussit. Ille adductis, in iis filio propinquisque ejus omnibus, quos nominatim exocaverat, consolatus Indutiomarum hortatusque est, uti in officio permaneret: nihilo³ tamen secius principibus Trevirorum ad se convocatis, hos singillatim Cingetorigi conciliavit: quod quum⁴ merito ejus ab se fieri intelligebat, tum magni interesse⁵ arbitrabatur, ejus auctoritatem inter sua quam plurimum⁶ valere, ejus tam egregiam in se voluntatem perspexisset. Id factum graviter tulit Indutiomarus, suam gratiam inter suos minui; et, qui jam ante inimico in nos animo⁷ fuisset,⁸ multo gravius hoc dolore exarsit.

V. His rebus constitutis, Cæsar ad portum Itium cum legionibus pervenit. Ibi cognoscit XL naves, quæ ipse Meldis factæ erant, tempestate rejectas cursum tenere non potuisse, atque eodem, unde¹ erant profectæ, revertisse: reliquas paratas ad navigandum, atque omnibus rebus instructas invenit. Eodem totius Galliæ equitatus convenit, numero millium quatuor,² principesque omnibus ex civitatibus: ex quibus perpauca, quorum in se fidem perspexerat, relinquere in Gallia, reliquos obsidum loco secum ducere decreverat; quod, quum ipse abesset, motum Galliæ verebatur.

VI. Erat una cum ceteris Dumnorix Æduus, de quo ab nobis antea dictum est. Hunc secum habere in primis constituerat, quod eum cupidum¹ rerum novarum, cupidum imperii, magni animi,² magnæ inter Gallos auctoritatis cognoverat. Accedebat huc, quod jam in concilio Æduorum Dumnorix dixerat 'sibi a Cæsare regnum civitatis deferri:' quod dictum³ Ædum graviter ferebant, neque recusandi aut deprecandi causa legatos ad Cæsarem mittere audebant.

Id factum ex suis hospitibus Cæsar cognoverat. Ille omnibus primo precibus petere contendit, ut in Gallia relinqueretur; partim, quod insuetus navigandi⁴ mare timeret,⁵ partim, quod religionibus sese diceret⁶ impediri. Posteaquam id obstinate sibi negari vidit, omni spe impetrandi adempta, principes Galliæ sollicitare, sevocare singulos hortarique cœpit, uti in continenti remanerent; metu territare, 'non sine causa fieri,⁷ ut Gallia omni nobilitate spoliaretur: id esse consilium Cæsaris, ut, quos in conspectu Galliæ interficere vereretur, hos omnes in Britanniam transductos necaret:' fidem reliquis interponere, jusjurandum poscere, ut, quod esse ex usu Galliæ intellexissent,⁸ communi consilio administrarent. Hæc a compluribus ad Cæsarem deferebantur.

VII. Qua re cognita, Cæsar, quod tantum civitati Æduæ dignitatis tribuerat, coercendum atque deterrendum, quibuscumque rebus posset, Dumnorigem statuebat, quod longius ejus amentiam progredi videbat, prospiciendum,¹ ne quid sibi ac reipublicæ nocere posset.² Itaque dies circiter XXV in eo loco commoratus, quod Corus ventus navigationem impendebat, qui magnam partem omnis temporis³ in his locis flare consuevit, dabat operam, ut in officio Dumnorigem contineret, nihilo⁴ tamen secius omnia ejus consilia cognosceret.⁵ tandem, idoneam tempestatem nactus, milites equitesque conscendere in naves jubet. At, omnium impeditis animis, Dumnorix cum equitibus Æduorum a castris, insciente Cæsare, domum discedere cœpit. Qua re nunciata, Cæsar, intermissa profectio, atque omnibus rebus postpositis, magnam partem equitatus ad eum insequendum⁶ mittit, retrahique⁷ imperat: si viam faciat, neque pareat, interficî jubet: nihil hunc, se absente, pro sano facturum arbitratus, qui præsentis imperium neglexisset.⁸ Ille enim⁹ revocatus resistere ac se manu defendere suorumque fidem implorare cœpit, sæpe clamitans 'liberum se, liberæque civitatis¹⁰ esse' Illi, ut erat impera-

VIII. His rebus gestis, Labieno in continente cum tribus legionibus et equitum millibus duobus relicto, ut portus tueretur, et rem frumentariam provideret, quæque in Gallia gererentur,¹ cognosceret, consiliumque pro tempore et pro re caperet, ipse cum quinque legionibus et pari numero equitum, quem in continenti relinquebat,² solis occasu naves solvit; et leni Africo provectus, media circiter nocte vento intermisso, eursum non tenuit, et longius delatus æstu, orta luce, sub sinistra Britanniam relictam conspexit. Tum rursus, æstus commutationem secutus, remis contendit, ut eam partem insulæ caperet, qua optimum esse egressum superiore æstate cognoverat. Qua in re admodum fuit militum virtus laudanda, qui vectoriis gravibusque navigiis, non intermisso remigandi labore, longarum navium cursum adæquarunt. Accessum est ad Britanniam omnibus navibus³ meridiano fere tempore: neque in eo loco hostis est visus, sed, ut postea Cæsar ex captivis comperit, quum⁴ magnæ manus eo convenissent, multitudo navium perterritæ, (quæ cum annofinis privatisque, quas sui quisque commodis⁵ fecerat, amplius DECC⁶ uno erant visæ tempore,) a litore discesserant, ac se in superiora loca abdiderant.

Atrium præfecit. Ipse, noctu progressus millia passuum circiter XII, hostium copias conspicatus est. Illi, equitatu atque essedis ad flumen progressi, ex loco superiore nostros prohibere et prælium committere cœperunt. Repulsi ab equitatu, se in silvas abdiderunt, locum nacti egregie et natura et opere munitum, quem domestici belli, ut videbatur, causa jam ante præparaverant: nam crebris arboribus succisis omnes introitus erant præclusi. Ipsi ex silvis rari propugnabant, nostrosque intra munitiones ingredi prohibebant. At milites legionis VII, testudine fac-

X. Postridie ejus diei mane tripartito milites equitesque in expeditionem misit, ut eos, qui fugerant, persequerentur. His aliquantum¹ itineris progressis, quum jam extremi essent in prospectu, equites a Q. Atrio ad Cæsarem venerunt, qui nunciarent,² 'superiore nocte, maxima coorta tempestate, prope omnes naves afflictas, atque in litore ejectas esse; quod neque ancoræ funesque subsisterent,³ neque nautæ gubernatoresque vim pati tempestatis possent: itaque ex eo concursu navium magnum esse incommodum acceptum.'

XI. His rebus cognitis, Cæsar legiones equitatumque revocari atque itinere desistere jubet: ipse ad naves revertitur: eadem fere, quæ ex nunciis literisque cognoverat, coram perspicit, sic ut, amissis circiter XL navibus, reliquæ tamen refici posse magno negotio viderentur.¹ Itaque ex legionibus fabros delegit, et ex continenti alios arcessiri jubet; Labieno scribit, ut, quam plurimas posset,² iis legionibus,³ quæ sunt⁴ apud eum, naves instituat. Ipse, etsi res erat multæ operæ ac laboris, tamen commodissimum esse statuit, omnes naves subduci et cum castris una munitione conjungi. XII. Britannicæ pars interior ab iis incolitur, quos natos in insula ipsa memoria proditum dicunt :¹ maritima pars ab iis, qui prædæ ac belli inferendi causa ex Belgis transierant; qui omnes fere iis nominibus civitatum² appellantur, quibus orti ex civitatibus eo pervenerant, et bello illato ibi remanserunt, atque agros colere cœperunt. Hominum est infinita multitudo creberrimæque ædificia, fere Gallicis consimilia : pecorum magnus numerus : Utuntur aut ære aut taleis ferreis, ad certum pondus examinatis, pro nummo. Nascitur ibi plumbum album in mediterraneis regionibus, in maritimis ferrum; sed ejus exigua est copia : ære utuntur importato. Materia cujusque generis, ut in Gallia, est præter fagum atque abietem. Leporem et gallinam et anserem gustare fas non putant; hæc tamen alunt animi voluptatisque causa.³ Loca sunt temperatiora quam in Gallia, remissioribus frigoribus.⁴

Hujus lateris alter angulus, qui est ad Cantium, quo fere omnes ex Gallia naves appellantur, ad orientem solem; inferior ad meridiem spectat. Hoc latus tenet circiter millia passuum D. Alterum vergit ad Hispaniam atque occidentem solem, qua ex parte est Hibernia, dimidio¹ minor, ut æstimatur, quam Britannia; sed pari spatio² transmissus atque ex Gallia est in Britanniam. In hoc medio cursu est iusula, quæ appellatur Mona; complures præterea minores objectæ insulæ existimantur; de quibus insulis nonnulli scripserant, dies continuos³ XXX sub bruma esse noctem. XIV Ex his omnibus longe sunt humanissimi, qui Cantium incolunt, quæ regio est maritima omnis, neque multum a Gallica differunt consuetudine. Interiores plerique¹ frumenta non serunt, sed lacte et carne vivunt, pellibusque sunt vestiti. Omnes vero se Britanni vitro inficiunt, quod cæruleum efficit colorem, atque hoc² horridiore sunt in pugna adpectu.³ capilloque sunt promisso, atque omni parte corporis rasa, præter caput et labram superius. Uxores habent deni duodenique inter se communes, et maxime fratres cum fratribus parentesque cum liberis; sed, si qui sunt ex his, nati, eorum habentur liberi, quo⁴ primum virgo quæque deducta est.

XV Equites hostium essedarii que acriter prælio cum equitatu nostro in itinere conflixerunt, tamen ut¹ nostri omnibus partibus superiores fuerint, atque eos in silvas collesque compulerint: sed, compluribus interfectis, cupidius insecuti, nonnullos ex suis amiserunt. At illi, intermisso spatio, imprudentibus nostris atque occupatis in munitione castrorum, subito se ex silvis ejecerunt, impetuque in eos facto, qui erant in statione pro castris collocati, acriter pugnaverunt: duabusque missis subsidio² cohortibus a Cæsare, atque his primis legionum duarum, quin hæ, perexiguo intermisso loci spatio inter se, constitissent, novo genere pugnae perterritis nostris, per medios audacissime perruperunt, seque inde incolumes receperunt. Eo die Q. Laberius Durus, tribunus militum, interficitur. Illi, pluribus immissis cohortibus, repelluntur.

XVII. Postero die procul a castris hostes in collibus constituerunt, rarique se ostendere, et lenius quam pridie nostros equites prælio lacessere cœperunt. Sed meridie, quum Cæsar pabulandi causa tres legiones atque omnem equitatum cum C. Trebonio legato misisset, repente ex omnibus partibus ad pabulatores advolaverunt, sic, uti ab signis legionibusque non absisterent¹. Nostri, acriter in eos impetu facto, repulerunt, neque finem sequendi fecerunt, quoad subsidio² confisi equites, quum³ post se legiones viderent, præcipientes hostes egerunt: magnoque eorum numero interfecto, neque sui colligendi⁴ neque consistendi aut ex essedis desiliendi facultatem dederunt. Ex⁵ hac fuga protinus, quæ undique convenerant, auxilia liscesserunt: neque post id tempus unquam summis⁶ nobiscum copiis hostes contenderunt.

XVIII. Cæsar, cognito consilio eorum, ad flumen Tamesin in fines Cassivellauni exercitum duxit; quod flumen uao omnino loco pedibus,¹ atque hoc ægre, transiri potest. Eo quum venisset, animum advertit ad alteram fluminis ripam magnas esse copias hostium instructas: ripa autem erat auctis sudibus præfixis munita; ejusdemque generis² sub aqua defixæ sudes flumine tegebantur. His rebus cognitis a captivis perfugisque, Cæsar, præmisso equitatu, confestim legiones subsequi jussit. Sed ea celeritate atque eo impetu milites ierunt, quum³ capite solos ex aqua exstarent, ut hostes impetum legionum atque equitum sustinere non possent, ripasque limitterent, ac se fugæ mandarent.

Relinquebatur, ut neque longius ab agmine legionum discedi³ Cæsar pateretur, et tantum in agris vastandis incendiisque faciendis hostibus noceretur,⁴ quantum labore atque itinere legionarii milites efficere poterant.

XX. Interim Trinobantes, prope firmissima earum regionum civitas, ex qua Mandubratius adolescens, Cæsaris fidem secutus, ad eum in continentem Galliam venerat, (cujus pater Imanuentius in ea civitate regnum obtinera², interfectus³que erat a Cassivellauno; ipse fuga mortem vitaverat) legatos ad Cæsarem mittunt, pollicenturque sese ei dedituros atque imperata facturos: petunt, ut Mandubratium ab injuria Cassivellauni defendat, atque in⁴ civitatem mittat, qui præsit,¹ imperiumque obtineat. His Cæsar imperat² obsides XL frumentumque exercitui, Mandubratiumque ad eos mittit. Illi imperata celeriter fecerunt, obsides ad numerum frumenta³que miserunt.

XXI. Trinobantibus defensio, atque ab omni militum injuria prohibitis,¹ Cenimagni, Segontiaci, Ancalites, Bibroci, Cassi, legatim missis sese Cæsari dedunt. Ab his cognoscit non longe ex eo loco oppidum Cassivellauni abesse, silvis paludibusque munitum, quo satis magnus hominum pecorisque numerus convenerit.² (Oppidum autem Britanni vocant,³ quum silvas, impeditas vallo atque fossa munierunt, quo incursionis hostium vitandæ causa convenire consueverunt.) Eo proficiscitur cum legionibus: locum reperit egregie natura atque opere munitum; tamen hunc duabus ex partibus oppugnare contendit. Illi, repentina re perturbati, etsi ab hoste ea dicebantur, non tamen negligenda existimabant: maximeque hac re permovebantur, quod civitatem ignobilem atque humilem Eburonum sua sponte populo Romano bellum facere ausam,¹ vix erat credendum. Itaque ad consilium rem deferunt, magnaue inter eos existit controversia. L. Aurunculeius compluresque tribuni militum et primorum ordinum centuriones, 'nihil temere agendum, neque ex hibernis injussu Cæsaris discedendum'² existimabant: 'quantasvis magnas³ etiam copias Germanorum sustineri posse munitis hibernis' docebant: 'Rem esse testimonio,⁴ quod primum hostium impetum, multis ultro⁵ vulneribus illatis, fortissime sustinuerint: re frumentaria non premi: interea et ex proximis hibernis, et a Cæsare conventura subsidia:' postremo, 'quid esse⁶ levius aut turpius, quam, auctore hoste, de summis rebus capere consilium?'

XXIX. Contra ea Titurius 'sero facturos' clamitabat, 'quum majores hostium manus, adjunctis Germanis, convenissent, aut quum aliquid clamitatis in proximis hibernis esset acceptum: brevem consulendi esse occasionem: Cæsarem arbitrari profectum in Italiam: neque aliter Carnutes interficiendi Tasgetii consilium fuisse capturos; neque Eburones, si ille adesset, tanta cum contumptione nostri ad castra venturos esse: non hostem auctorem, sed rem spectare; subesse Rhenum; magno esse Germanis dolori¹ Ariovisti mortem et superiores nostras victorias: ardere Galliam, tot contumeliis acceptis sub populi Romani imperium redactam, superiore gloria rei militaris exstincta.' Postremo, 'quis hoc sibi persuaderet,² sine certa re Ambiorigem ad ejusmodi consilium descendisse? Suam sententiam in utramque partem esse tutam: si nil sit durius,³ nullo periculo ad proximam legionem perventuros; si Gallia omnis cum Germanis consentiat, unam esse in celeritate positam salutem. At Cotta, qui cogitasset³ hæc posse in itinere accidere, atque ob eam causam profectionis auctor non fuisset, nulla in re communi saluti deerat; et in appellandis cohortandisque militibus imperatoris et in pugna militis officia præstabat. Quumque propter longitudinem agminis minus facile per se omnia obire, et quid quoque loco faciendum esset,⁴ providere possent, jusserunt pronunciare,⁵ ut impedimenta relinquerent, atque in orbem consisterent. Quod consilium etsi in ejusmodi casu reprehendendum non est, tamen incommode accidit: nam et nostris militibus⁶ spem minuit, et hostes ad pugnam alacriores⁷ effecit, quod non sine summo timore et desperatione id factum videbatur. Præterea accidit, quod fieri necesse erat, ut vulgo milites ab signis discederent, quæ quisque eorum carissima haberet,⁸ ab impedimentis petere atque abripere properaret clamore ac fletu omnia complerentur.

XXXV Quo præcepto ab iis diligentissime observato, quum quæpiam cohors ex orbe excesserat atque impetum fecerat, hostes velocissime refugiebant. Interim eam partem nudam necesse erat, et ab latere aperto tela recipi. Rursus, quum in eum locum, unde erant egressi, reverti cõperant, et ab iis, qui cesserant, et ab iis, qui proximi steterant, circumveniebantur; sin autem locum tenere vel-Tamen tot incommodis conflictati, multis vulneribus acceptis, resistebant; et magna parte diei consumpta, quum a prima luce ad horam octavam pugnaretur, nihil, quod ipsis esset indignum,² committebant. Tum T. Balventio,³ qui superiore anno primum pilum duxerat, viro forti et magnæ auctoritatis, utrumque femur tragula transjicitur: Q. Ille cum Cotta saucio communicat, 'si videatur, pugna ut excedant, et cum Ambiorige una colloquantur: sperare, ab eo de sum ac militum salute impetrare posse.' XXXVII. Sabinus, quos in præsentia tribunos militum circum se habebat et primorum ordinum centuriones, se sequi jubet; et quum propius Ambiorigem¹ accessisset, jussus arma abjicere, imperatum facit, suisque, ut idem faciant, imperat. Interim, dum de conditionibus inter se agunt, longiorque consulto ab Ambiorige instituitur sermo, paulatim circumventus interficitur. Tum vero suo more victoriam² conclamant, atque ululatum tollunt, impetuque in nostros facto, ordines perturbant. Ibi L. Cotta pugnans interficitur cum maxima parte militum; reliqui se in castra recipiunt, unde erant egressi: ex quibus L. Petrosidius aquilifer, quum magna multitudine hostium premeretur, aquilam intra vallum projecit, ipse pro castris fortissime pugnans occiditur. Illi ægre ad noctem oppugnationem sustinent: noctu ad unum omnes, desparata salute, se ipsi interficiunt. Pauci, ex prælio elapsi, incertis itineribus per silvas ad T. Labienum legatum in hiberna perveniunt, atque eum de rebus gestis certiores faciunt.

XXXVIII. Hac victoria sublatus Ambiorix, statim cum equitatu in Aduatucos, qui erant ejus regno¹ finitimi, proficiscitur; neque noctem neque diem, intermittit, peditatumque se subsequi jubet. Re demonstrata, Aduatucisque concitatis, postero die in Nervios pervenit, hortaturque, 'ne sui in perpetuum liberandi² atque ulciscendi Romanos pro iis, quas acceperint, injuriis occasionem dimittant: interfectos esse legatos duo, magnamque partem exercitus interisse' demonstrat; 'nihil esse negotii,³ subito oppressam legionem, quæ cum Cicerone hiemet, interfici; se ad eam rem' proficitur 'adjutorem.' Facile hac oratione Nervii persuadet.

XXXIX. Itaque, confestim dimissis nunciis ad Centrones, Grudios, Levaecos, Pleumoxios, Geidunos, qui omnes sub eorum imperio sunt, quam maximas manus possunt, cogunt; et de improvise ad Ciceronis hiberna advolant, nondum ad eum fama de Titurii morte perlata. Huic quoque accidit, quod fuit necesse, ut nonnulli milites, qui lignationis munitionisque causa in silvas discessissent,¹ repentino equitum adventu intereiperentur. His circumventis, magna manu Eburones, Nervii, Aduatuci atque horum omnium socii et clientes legionem oppugnare incipiunt: nostri celeriter ad arma concurrunt, vallum conscendunt. XL. Mittuntur ad Cæsarem confestim ab Cicerone literæ, magnis propositis præmiis, si pertulissent.¹ Obsessis omnibus viis, missi intercipiuntur. Noctu ex ea materia, quam munitionis causa comportaverant, turres admodum CXX excitantur incredibili celeritate: quæ deesse operi² videbantur, perficiuntur. Hostes postero die, multo majoribus copiis coactis, castra oppugnant, fossam complent. Ab nostris eadem ratione, qua pridie, resistitur: hoc idem deinceps reliquis fit diebus. Nulla pars nocturni temporis ad laborem intermittitur: non agris, non vulneratis facultas quietis datur: quæcumque ad proximi diei oppugnationem opus³ sunt, noctu comparantur: multæ præustæ sudes, magnus muralium pilorum numerus instituitur; turres contabulantur, pinnæ loricaeque ex eratibus attexuntur. Ipse Cicero quum tenuissima valetudine⁴ esset, ne nocturnum quidem sibi tempus ad quietem relinquebat, ut ultro⁵ militum concursu ac vocibus sibi parcere cogeretur.

XLI. Tunc duces principesque Nerviorum, qui aliquem sermonis aditum¹ causamque amicitiae cum Cicerone habebant, colloqui sese velle dicunt. Facta potestate, eadem, quæ Ambiorix cum Titurio egerat, commemorant, 'omnem esse in armis Galliam, Germanos Rhenum transisse, Cæsaris reliquorumque hiberna oppugnari.' Addunt etiam de Sabini morte. Amborigem ostentant fidei faciundæ causa:² 'Errare eos' dicunt, 'si quidquam ab his³ præsidii sperent, qui suis rebus diffidunt: sese tamen hoc esse in Ciceronem populumque Romanum animo,⁴ ut nihil nisi hiberna recusent, atque hanc inveterascere consuetudinem nolint: licere illis incolumibus per se ex hibernis discedere, et, quascumque in partes velint, sine metu proficisci.' Cicero ad hæc unum modo respondit: 'Non esse consuetudinem populi Romani ullam accipere ab hoste armato conditionem: si ab armis discedere velint, se adiutore utantur,⁵ legatosque ad Cæsarem mittant: sperare pro ejus justitia, quæ petierint, impetraturos.'

XLII. Ab hac spe repulsi Nervii, vallo pedum XI et fossa pedum XV hiberna cingunt. Hæc et superiorum annorum consuetudine¹ nostris cognoverant, et, quosdam de exercitu nacti captivos, ab his docebantur: sed, nulla ferramentorum copia,² quæ sunt ad hunc usum idonea, gladiis cespitem circumcidere, manibus sagulisque terram exhaurire cogeantur. Qua quidem ex re hominum multitudo cognosci potuit: nam minus horis tribus millium X in circuitu munitionem perfecerunt: reliquisque diebus turres ad altitudinem valli, falces testudinesque, quas iidem captivi docuerant, parare ac facere cœperunt.

XLIII. Septimo oppugnationis die, maximo coorto vento, ferventes fusili ex argilla glandes¹ fundis et fervefacta jacula in casas quæ more Gallico stramentis erant tectæ, jacere cœperunt. Haeceleriter ignem comprehenderunt, et venti magnitudine in omnem castrorum locum distulerunt.² Hostes, maximo clamore insecuti quasi parta jam atque explorata victoria, turres testudinesque agere et scalis vallum ascendere cœperunt. At tanta militum virtus atque ea³ præsentia animi fuit, ut, quum⁴ undique flamma torrerentur maximaque telorum multitudo premerentur, suaque omnia impedimenta atque omnes fortunas conflagrare intelligerent, non modo demigrandi causa de vallo decederet nemo, sed pæne ne respiceret quidem quisquam; ac tum omnes acerrime fortissimeque pugnarent. Hic dies nostris longe gravissimus fuit; sed tamen hunc habuit eventum, ut eo die maximus hostium numerus vulneraretur atque interficeretur, ut⁵ se sub ipso vallo constipaverant, recessumque primis ultimi non dabant. Paulum quidem intermissa flamma, et quodam loco turri adacta et contingente vallum, tertiæ cohortis centuriones ex eo, quo⁶ stabant, loco recesserunt, suosque omnes removerunt. nutu vocibusque hostes, si introire vellent,⁷ vocare cœperunt, quorum progredi ausus est nemo. Tum ex omni parte lapidibus coniectis⁸ deturbati, turrisque succensa est.

XLIV. Erant in eâ legione fortissimi viri centuriones, qui jam primis ordinibus appropinquarent,¹ T. Pulſio et L. Varenus. Hi per-

Ex iis Pulſio, quum acerrime ad munitiones pugnaretur, "quid⁴ dubitas," inquit, "Varene? aut quem locum probandæ virtutis tuæ spectas? hic dies, hic dies de nostris controversiis iudicabit." Hæc quum dixisset, procedit extra munitiones, quæque pars hostium confertissima visa est, in eam irrumpit. Ne Varenus quidem tum vallo sese continet,⁵ sed omnium veritus existimationem subsequitur. Mediocri spatio relicto, Pulſio pilum in hostes mitit, atque unum ex multitudine procurrentem transiicit, quo percusso et exanimato, hunc scutis protegent hostes, in illum tela universi conieciunt, neque dant regrediendi facultatem. Transfigitur scutum Pulſioni,⁶ et verutum in balteo defigitur. Avertit hic casus vaginam, et gladium educere conanti⁷ dextram moratur manum: impeditum hostes circumsistunt. Succurrit inimicus illi Varenus, et laboranti subvenit. Ad hunc se confestim a Pulſione omnis multitudo convertit; illum veruto transixum arbitrantur. Occursat ocuis gladio, cominusque rem gerit Varenus, atque, uno interfecto, reliquos paulum propellit: dum cupidius instat, in locum dejectus inferiorem⁸ concidit. Huic rursus circumvento fert subsidium Pulſio, atque ambo incolumes, complurius interfectis, summa cum laude sese intra munitiones recipiunt. Sic fortuna in contentione et certamine utrumque versavit, ut alter alteri inimicus auxilio salutique⁹ esset, neque dijudicari posset, uter utri virtute anteferendus videretur.¹⁰

XLV Quanto¹ erat in dies gravior atque asperior oppugnatio, et maxime quod, magna parte militum confecta vulneribus, res ad paucitatem defensorum pervenerat, tanto¹ crebriores literæ nunciique ad Cæsarem mittebantur: quorum pars deprehensa in conspectu militum cruciatu necabatur. Erat unus intus Nervius, nomine Vertico, loco natus honesto, qui a primâ² obsidione ad Ciceronem perfugerat, suamque ei fidem præstiterat. Si adire non possit, monet, ut tragulam cum epistola ad amentum deligata intra munitiones castrorum abjiciat. In literis scribit, 'se cum legionibus profectum celeriter affore:' hortatur, 'ut pristinam virtutem retineat.' Gallus, periculum veritus, ut erat præceptum, tragulam mittit. XLIX. Galli, recognita per exploratores, obsidionem relinquunt, ad Cæsarem omnibus copiis contendunt; eæ erant armatarum circiter millia LX. Cicero, data facultate, Gallum ab eodem Verticone, quem supra demonstravimus, repetit, qui literas ad Cæsarem referat:¹ hunc admonet, iter caute diligenterque faciat:² perscribit in literis 'hostes ab se discessisse, omnemque ad eum multitudinem convertisse.' Quibus literis circiter media nocte, Cæsar, allatis, suos facit certiores, eosque ad dimicandum animo confirmat: postero die luce prima movet castra, et circiter millia passuum quatuor progressus, trans vallem magnam et rivum multitudinem hostium conspicatur. Erat magni periculi res, cum tantis copiis iniquo loco dimicarent. Tum, quoniam liberatum obsidione Ciceronem sciebat, eoque omnino remittendum³ de celeritate existimabat, consedit, et, quam æquissimo potest loco, castra communit. Atque hæc, etsi erant exigua per se, vix hominum milium VII,⁴ præsertim nullis cum impedimentis, tamen angustiis viarum,⁵ quam maxime potest, contrahit, eo consilio, ut in summam contemptionem hostibus⁶ veniat. Interim, speculatoribus in omnes partes dimissis, explorat, quo commodissime itinere vallem transire possit.⁷

LIII. Interim ad Labienum per Remos incredibili celeritate de victoria Cæsaris fama perfertur, ut, quum¹ ab hibernis Ciceronis abesset millia passuum circiter LX, eoque post horam nonam diei Cæsar pervenisset, ante mediam noctem ad portas castrorum clamor oriretur, quo elamore significatio victoriæ gratulatioque ab Remis Labienò fieret.² Hac fama ad Treviros perlata, Indutiomarus, qui postero die castra Labieni oppugnare decreverat, noctu profugit, copiasque omnes in Treviros reducit. Cæsar Fabium cum legione in sua remittit hiberna, ipse cum tribus legionibus circum Samorbrivam trinis³ hibernis hiemare constituit; et, quod tanti motus Galliæ exstiterant, totam hiemem ipse ad exercitum manere decrevit. Nam illo incommodo de Sabini morte perlato, omnes fere Galliæ civitates de bello consultabant, nuncios legationesque in omnes partes dimittebant, et, quid reliqui consilii caperent,⁴ atque unde initium belli fieret, explorabant, nocturnaue in locis desertis concilia habebant. Neque ullum fere totius hiemis tempus sine sollicitudine Cæsaris intercessit, quin aliquem de conciliis ac motu Gallorum nuncium acciperet.⁵ In his ab L. Roscio legato, quem legioni XIII præfecerat, certior est factus, ‘magnas Gallorum copias earum civitatum, quæ Armoricæ appellantur, oppugnandi sui causa convenisse: neque longius⁶ millia passuum VIII ab hibernis suis abfuisse; sed nuncio allato de victoria Cæsaris, discessisse, adeo, ut fugæ similis discessus videretur.’

DE BELLO GALLICO

LIBER VI.

I. MULTIS de causis Cæsar, majorem Galliæ motum expectans, per M. Silanum, C. Antistium Reginum, T. Sextium, legatos, delectum habere instituit: simul ab Cn. Pompeio¹ proconsule petit, quoniam ipse² ad urbem cum imperio reipublicæ causa remaneret,³ quos ex Cisalpina Gallia consulis sacramento rogavisset,⁴ ad signa convenire et ad se proficisci juberet.⁵ magni⁶ interesse etiam in reliquum tempus ad opinionem Galliæ⁷ existimans, tantas videri Italiæ facultates, ut, si quid esset in bello detrimenti acceptum,⁸ non modo, id brevi tempore sarciri, sed etiam majoribus adaugeri⁹ copiis posset. Quod quum Pompeius et reipublicæ et amicitiae¹⁰ tribuisset, celeriter confecto per suos delectu, tribus ante exactam hiemem et constitutis et adductis legionibus, duplicatoque earum cohortium numero, quas cum Q. Titurio amiserat, et celeritate et copiis docuit, quid populi Romani disciplina atque opes possent.

NOTES

- I. 1. Ab Cn. Pompeio. Pompey had been consul the year before, and was governing the province of Spain as proconsul. He chose, however, to remain at Rome, for the ostensible purpose of supplying the city with corn, while his lieutenants were sent to command in Spain.
2. Ipse, "Himself," as opposed to his legates.
3. Remaneret, As he alleged; §219, c.
4. Quos—rogavisset, "Whom he had enrolled with the consul's oath;" i.e. whom he had sworn in the year before, while consul. Rogare is the term used for administering the oath to a soldier—"asking" him to take it. The Romans retained the shadow of civil liberty long after they had lost the substance.
5. Juberet, §193, Rem. 6.
6. Magni, §137.
7. In reliquum tempus ad opinionem Galliæ, "That it was of great importance for the future opinion of the Gauls." Facultates videri is subject of interesse. The Gauls would naturally be elated by the success of Ambiorix in destroying the force under Cotta and Sabinus.
8. Esset acceptum, "Should be received;" §198, a.
9. Adaugeri, "More than made up;" literally, "Made greater than ever." The loss is here put, by metonymy, for the person sustaining it.
10. Et reipublicæ et amicitiae tribuisset, "Had paid this tribute both to the state and to friendship;" i.e. had done this thing for the sake both of the public good and of his friendship for Cæsar.

II. Interfecto Indutiomaro, ut docuimus, ad ejus propinquos a Trevis imperium defertur. Illi finitimos Germanos sollicitare et pecuniam polliceri non desistunt: quum ab proximis impetrare non possent,¹ ultiores tentant. Inventis nonnullis civitatibus,² jurejurando inter se confirmant,³ obsidibusque de pecunia cavent:⁴ Ambiorigem sibi societate et fœdere adjungunt. Quibus rebus cognitis, Cæsar, quum undique bellum parari videret, Nervios,⁵ Aduatucos, Menapios, adjunctis Cisrhenanis omnibus Germanis, esse in armis, Senones ad imperatum non venire, et cum Carnutibus finitimisque civitatibus consilia communicare, a Trevis Germanos crebris legationibus sollicitari; maturius sibi⁶ de bello cogitandum putavit.

III. Itaque nondum hieme confecta, proximis IV legionibus coactis, de improvviso in fines Nerviorum contendit, et, prius quam illi aut convenire aut profugere possent,¹ magno pecoris atque hominum numero capto, atque ea præda militibus concessa, vastatisque agris, in deditionem venire atque obsides sibi dare coegit. Eo celeriter confecto negotio, rursus legiones in hiberna reduxit. Concilio Galliæ primo vere, uti instituerat, indicto, quum reliqui præter Senones, Carnutes Trevirosque venissent, initium belli ac defectionis hoc² esse arbitratus, ut omnia postponere³ videretur, concilium Lutetiam Parisiorum transfert. Confines erant hi Senonibus, civitatemque patrum memoria conjunxerant; sed ab hoc consilio abfuisse⁴ existimabantur. Hac re pro suggestu pronunciata, eodem die cum legionibus in Senones⁵ proficiscitur, magnisque itineribus eo pervenit.

IV. Cognito ejus adventu, Acco, qui princeps ejus consilii fuerat, jubet in oppida multitudinem convenire; conantibus,¹ prius quam id effici posset,² adesse Romanos nunciatur; necessario sententia desistunt, legatosque deprecandi causa ad Cæsarem mittunt; adeunt per Æduos, quorum antiquitus erat in fide civitas. Libenter Cæsar petentibus Ædais dat veniam, excusationemque accipit;

II 1. Quum—possent, "Since they could not obtain help." 2. Hoc, i.e. their neglect to attend the council.

2. Inventis nonnullis civitatibus, i.e. that were willing to help them. 3 Postponere, "That he might seem to deem every thing else of secondary importance."

3. Confirmant, sc. amicitiam or fœdus. 4. Ab hoc consilio abfuisse, "To have had nothing to do with the plot" of the Senones, Carnutes, and Treviri.

4. Obsidibusque de pecunia cavent, "And provide by hostages for the payment of the money." 5. In Senones, "Against the Senones."

quod æstivum tempus instantis belli, non quæstionis³ esse arbitrabatur. Obsidibus imperatis centum, hos Æduis custodiendos tradit. Eodem Carnutes legatos obsidesque mittunt, usi deprecatoribus⁴ Remis, quorum erant in clientela: eadem ferunt responsa. Peragit concilium Cæsar, equitesque imperat civitatibus.

V Hac parte Galliæ pacata, totus et mente et animo¹ in bellum Trevirorum et Ambiorigis insistit. Cavarinum² cum equitatu Senonum secum proficisci jubet, ne quis aut ex hujus iracundia aut ex eo, quod meruerat, odio³ civitatis motus exsistat. His rebus constitutis, quod pro explorato habebat, Ambiorigem prælio non esse concertaturum, reliqua ejus consilia animo circumspiciebat. Erant Menapii propinqui Eburonum finibus, perpetuis paludibus silvisque muniti, qui uni ex Gallia⁴ de pace ad Cæsarem legatos nunquam miserant. Cum iis esse hospitium Ambiorigi⁵ sciebat: item per Treviros venisse Germanis⁶ in amicitiam cognoverat. Hæc prius illi⁷ detrahenda auxilia existimabat, quam ipsum bello lacesseret;⁸ ne, desperata salute, aut se in Menapios abderet, aut cum Transrhenanis congregari cogeretur. Hoc inito consilio, totius exercitus impedimenta ad Labienum in Treviros mittit, duasque legiones ad eum proficisci jubet: ipse cum legionibus expeditis quinque in Menapios proficiscitur. Illi, nulla coacta manu, loci præsidio freti, in silvas paludesque confugiunt, suæque eodem conferunt.

VI. Cæsar, partitis copiis cum C. Fabio legato et M. Crasso quæstore, celeriterque effectis pontibus, adit tripartito, ædificia vicosque incendit, magno pecoris atque hominum numero potitur. Quibus rebus coacti Menapii, legatos ad eum pacis petendæ causa mittunt. Ille, obsidibus acceptis, hostium se habiturum numero confirmat, si aut Ambiorigem aut ejus legatos finibus suis recepissent.¹ His confirmatis rebus, Commium Atrebatem cum equitatu custodis loco in Menapiis relinquit; ipse in Treviros proficiscitur.

via aberant, quum duas venisse legiones missu Cæsaris¹ cognoscant. Positis castris a millibus passuum XV,² auxilia Germanorum expectare constituunt. Labienus, hostium cognito consilio, sperans temeritate eorum fore aliquam dimicandi facultatem, præsidio cohortium V impedimentis³ relicto, cum XXV cohortibus magnoque equitatu contra hostium⁴ proficiscitur, et, M passuum intermisso spatio, castra communit. Erat inter Labienum atque hostem⁴ difficili transitu flumen ripisque præruptis:⁵ hoc neque ipse transire in animo habebat, neque hostes transituros existimabat. Augebatur auxiliorum quotiæne spes. Loquitur in consilio palam, ‘quoniam Germani appropinquare dicantur, sese suas exercitusque fortunas in dubium non devocaturum, et postero die prima luce castra moturum.’ Celeriter hæc ad hostes deferuntur,⁶ ut ex magno Gallorum equitatus numero nonnullos Gallicis rebus favere natura cogeat. Labienus noctu, tribunis militum primisque ordinibus⁷ coactis, quid sui sit consilii,⁸ proponit, et quo facilius hostibus timoris det suspicionem, majore strepitu et tumultu, quam populi Romani fert consuetudo, castra moveri jubet. His rebus fugæ similem profectionem efficit. Hæc quoque per exploratores ante lucem, in tanta propinquitate⁹ castrorum, ad hostes deferuntur.

VIII. Vix agmen novissimum extra munitiones processerat, quum Galli, cohortati inter se, ‘ne speratam prædam ex manibus dimitterent; longum esse,¹ perterritis Romanis, Germanorum auxilium expectare; neque suam pati dignitatem, ut tantis copiis tam exiguum manum, præsertim fugientem atque impeditam, adoriri non audeant;’ flumen transire et iniquo loco prælium committere non dubitant. Quæ fore² suspicatus Labienus, ut omnes citra flumen eliceret, eadem usus simulatione itineris, placide progrediebatur. Tum, præmissis paulum impedimentis atque in tumulto quodam collocatis: “Habetis,”³ inquit, “milites, quam petistis, facultatem: hostem impedito atque iniquo loco tenetis: præstate eandem nobis ducibus virtutem, quam sæpenumero imperatori præstitistis: adesse eum et hæc coram cernere, existimate.” Simul signa ad

Illi imperata faciunt, et, paucis diebus intermissis, referant, 'Suevos omnes, posteaquam certiores nuncii de exercitu Romanorum venerint,² cum omnibus suis sociorumque copiis, quas coegissent, penitus ad extremos fines sese recepisse: silvam esse ibi infinita magnitudine, quæ appellatur³ Bacenis: hanc longe introrsus pertinere, et, pro nativo muro objectam, Cheruscos ab Suevis Suevosque ab Cheruscis, injuriis incursionibusque⁴ prohibere: ad ejus initium silvæ Suevos adventum Romanorum exspectare constituisse.'

XI. Quoniam ad hunc locum perventum est, non alienum¹ esse videtur de Galliæ Germaniæque moribus, et quo² differant³ eæ nationes inter sese, proponere. In Gallia non solum in omnibus civitatibus atque in omnibus pagis partibusque, sed pæne etiam in singulis domibus factiones sunt: eorumque factionum principes sunt, qui summam auctoritatem eorum judicio habere existimantur, quorum ad arbitrium judiciumque summa omnium rerum consiliorumque redeat.⁴ Idque ejus rei causa antiquitus institutum videtur, ne quis ex plebe contra potentiores auxilii⁵ egeret: suos enim quisque opprimi et circumveniri non patitur, neque, aliter si faciant,⁶ ullam inter suos habent auctoritatem. Hæc eadem ratio est in summa⁷ totius Galliæ: namque omnes civitates in partes divisæ sunt duas.

XII. Quum Cæsar in Galliam venit, alterius factionis principes erant Ædui, alterius Sequani. Hi quum per se minus valerent, quod summa auctoritas antiquitus erat in Æduis, magnæque eorum erant clientelæ, Germanos atque Ariovistum sibi adjunxerant, eosque ad se magnis jacturis pollicitationibusque perduxerant. Proinde vero compluribus factis secundis, atque omni nobilitate Æduorum interfecta, tantum potentia antecesserant, ut magnam partem clientium ab Æduis ad se transducerent, obsidesque ab iis principum illos acciperent, et publice jurare cogerent, nihil se contra Sequanos consilii inituros; et partem finitimi agri, per vim occupatam, possiderent,¹ Galliæque totius principatum obtinerent. adductus Divitiacus, auxilii petendi causa Romam ad senatum profectus,² infecta re redierat. Adventu Cæsaris facta commutatione rerum, obsidibus Æduis redditis, veteribus clientelis restitutis, novis per Cæsarem comparatis, (quod hi, qui se ad eorum amicitiam aggregaverant, meliore conditione atque æquiore imperio se uti videbant), reliquis rebus eorum,³ gratia dignitateque amplificata, Sequani principatū dimiserant. In eorum locum Remi successerant; quos⁴ quod adæquare apud Cæsarem gratia intelligebatur, ii, qui propter veteres inimicitias nullo modo cum Æduis conjungi poterant, se Remis in clientelam dicabant. Hos illi diligenter tuebantur. Ita et novam et repente collectam auctoritatem tenebant. Eo tum status res erat, ut longe principes haberentur Ædui, secundum locum dignitatis Remi obtinerent.

XIII. In omni Gallia eorum hominum, qui aliquo sunt numero¹ atque honore, genera sunt duo: nam plebes pæne servorum habetur loco, quæ per se nihil audet, et nulli adhibetur consilio. Plerique,² quum aut ære alieno aut magnitudine tributorum aut injuria potentiorum premuntur, sese in servitutem dicant nobilibus: in hos eadem omnia sunt jura, quæ dominis³ in servos. Sed⁴ de his duobus generibus alterum est Druidum, alterum equitum. Illi rebus divinis intersunt, sacrificia publica ac privata procurant, religiones interpretantur. Ad hos magnus adolescentium numerus disciplinæ causa concurrat, magnoque ii sunt apud eos honore. Nam fere⁵ de omnibus controversiis publicis privatisque constituunt; et si quod est admissum facinus, si cædes facta, si de hereditate, si de finibus controversia est, iidem decernunt; præmia pœnasque constituunt: si qui⁶ aut privatus aut publicus eorum decreto non stetit, sacrificiis interdiciunt. Hæc pœna apud eos est gravissima. Quibus ita est interdictum, ii numero impiorum ac sceleratorum habentur: iis omnes decedunt, aditum eorum sermonemque defugiunt, ne quid ex contagione incommodi accipiant: neque iis petentibus jus redditur, neque honos ullus communicatur. His autem omnibus Druidibus præest unus, qui summam inter eos habet auctoritatem. Hoc mortuo, si qui⁶ ex reliquis excellit dignitate, succedit: at, si sunt plures pares, ffragio Druidum allegitur,⁷ nonnunquam etiam armis de principatu intendunt. Hi certo anni tempore in finibus Carnutum, quæ regio tunc Galliæ media habetur, considunt in loco consecrato. Huc omnes undique, qui controversias habent, conveniunt, eorumque decretaque judiciis parent. Disciplina in Britannia reperta, atque inde Galliam translata esse existimatur. Et nunc, qui diligentius in rem cognoscere volunt, plerumque illo discendi causa proficiuntur.

XIV Druides a bello abesse consuerunt, neque tributa una cum liquidis pendunt; militiæ vacationem omniumque rerum habent immunitatem. Tantis excitati præmiis, et sua sponte multi in disciplinam¹ conveniunt, et a parentibus propinquisque mittuntur. Magnum ibi² numerum versuum ediscere dicuntur: itaque annos nonnulli vicenos in disciplina permanent. Neque fas esse existimant³ literis mandare, quum⁴ in reliquis fere rebus, publicis privatisque actionibus⁵ Græcis literis utantur. Id mihi duabus de causis instisse videntur; quod neque in vulgum disciplinam efferri velint, neque eos, qui discant, literis confisos, minus memoriæ studere. Quod fere plerisque accidit, ut, præsidio literarum diligentiam in erdiscendo ac memoriam remittant. In primis hoc volunt persuadere, non interire animas, sed ab aliis post mortem transire ad alios: quæ hoc maxime ad virtutem excitari⁶ putant, metu mortis neglecto. Multa præterea de sideribus atque eorum motu, de mundi ac rerum magnitudine, de rerum natura, de deorum immortalium vi potestate disputant, et juventuti tradunt.

XV Alterum genus est equitum. Hi, quum est usus, atque aliquid bellum incidit, (quod ante Cæsaris adventum fere quotannis incidere solebat, uti aut ipsi injurias inferrent, aut illatas propulsarent) omnes in bello versantur: atque eorum ut quisque est genere piisque amplissimus, ita plurimos circum se ambactos clientesque habent. Hanc unam gratiam potentiamque noverunt.¹

Alii immani magnitudine simulacra habent, quorum contexta viminibus³ membra vivis hominibus complent, quibus succensis, circumventi flamma exanimantur homines. Supplicia eorum, qui in furto aut in latrocinio aut aliqua noxa sint comprehensi,⁴ gratiora diis immortalibus esse arbitrantur : sed, quum ejus generis copia deficit, etiam ad innocentium supplicia descendunt.

Post hunc, Apollinem et Martem et Jovem et Minervam : de his eandem fere quam reliquæ gentes habent opinionem ; Apollinem morbos depellere, Minervam operum atque artificiorum initia tradere ; Jovem imperium cœlestium tenere ; Martem bella regere. Huic, quum prælio dimicare constituerunt, ea, quæ bello ceperint,² plerumque devovent. Quum superaverunt, animalia capta immolant, reliquas res in unum locum conferunt. Multis in civitatibus harum rerum exstructos tumulos locis consecratis conspicari licet : neque sæpe accidit, ut neglecta quispiam religione, aut capta apud se occultare, aut posita tollere³ auderet ; gravissimumque ei rei supplicium cum cruciatu constitutum est.

Hoc fere est in mediis Eburonum finibus, ubi Titurius atque Aurunculeius hiemandi causa consederant. Hunc quum reliquis rebus³ locum probabat, tum quod superioris anni munitiones integræ manebant, ut militum laborem sublevaret. Præsidio impedimentis legionem XIV reliquit, unam ex iis tribus, quas proxime conscriptas ex Italia transduxerat. Ei legioni castrisque Q. Tullium Ciceronem præfuit, ducentosque equites attribuit.

Labienum Treboniumque hortatur, si reipublicæ commodo³ facere possint, ad eam diem revertantur; ut, rursus communicato consilio, exploratisque hostium rationibus, aliud belli initium capere possent.

XXXIV Erat, ut supra demonstravimus, manus certa nulla, non oppidum, non præsidium, quod se armis defenderet;¹ sed in omnes partes dispersa multitudo. Ubi cuique aut vallis abdita, aut locus silvestris, aut palus impedita spem præsidii aut salutis aliquam offerebat, consederat. Hæc loca vicinitatibus² erant nota, magnamque res diligentiam requirebat, non in summa exercitus tuenda, (nullum enim poterat universis ab perterritis ac dispersis periculum accidere,) sed in singulis militibus conservandis; quæ tamen ex parte³ res ad salutem exercitus pertinebat. Nam⁴ et prædæ cupiditas multos longius evocabat, et silvæ incertis occultisque itineribus confertos adire prohibebant. Si negotium confici stirpemque hominum sceleratorum interfici vellet, dimittendæ plures manus, diducendique erant milites: si continere ad signa manipulos vellet, ut instituta ratio et consuetudo exercitus Romani postulabat, locus ipse erat præsidio barbaris, neque ex occulto insidiandi et dispersos circumveniendi singulis deerat audacia. At in ejusmodi difficultatibus, quantum diligentia provideri poterat, providebatur; ut potius in nocendo aliquid ommitteretur,⁵ etsi omnium animi ad ulciscendum ardebant,⁶ quam cum aliquo detrimento militum noceretur. Cæsar ad finitimas civitates nuncios dimittit, omnes ad se evocat spe prædæ ad diripiendos Eburones, ut potius in silvis Gallorum vita, quam legionarius miles⁷ periclitetur; simul ut, magna multitudine circumfusa, pro tali facinore stirps ac nomen civitatis tollatur. que appetebat septimus, quem ad diem Cæsar ad impedimenta legionemque reverti constituerat. Hic, quantum in bello fortuna posset, et quantos afferat casus, cognosci potuit. Dissipatis ac perterritis hostibus, ut demonstravimus, manus erat nulla, quæ parvam modo causam timoris afferret.¹ Trans Rhenum ad Germanos pervenit fama, diripi Eburones,² atque ultro³ omnes ad prædam evocari. Cogunt equitum duo millia Sigambri, qui sunt proximi Rheno, a quibus receptos ex fuga Tenchtheros atque Usipetes supra docuimus: transeunt Rhenum navibus ratibusque, XXX millibus passuum infra eum locum, ubi pons erat perfectus, præsidiumque ab Cæsare relictum: primos Eburonum fines adeunt, multos ex fuga dispersos excipiunt, magno pecoris numero, cujus sunt cupidissimi barbari, potiuntur. Invitati præda, longius procedunt: non hos palus, in bello latrociniiisque natos, non silvæ morantur: quibus in locis sit Cæsar, ex captivis quærent; profectum longius reperiunt, omnemque exercitum discessisse cognoscunt. Atque unus ex captivis, "quid vos," inquit, "hanc miseram ac tenuem sectamini prædam, quibus licet jam esse fortunatissimis?" Tribus horis Aduatucam venire potestis: huc omnes suas fortunas exercitus Romanorum contulit: præsidii tantum⁵ est, ut ne murus quidem cingi possit, neque quisquam egredi extra munitiones audeat." Oblata spe, Germani, quam nacti erant prædam, in occulto relinquunt; ipsi Aduatucam contendunt, usi eodem duce,⁶ cujus hæc indicio cognoverant.

imas segetes misit, quas inter et castra unus omnino collis intererat. Complures erant in castris ex legionibus ægri relictī; ex quibus, qui hoc spatio dierum convaluerant, circiter CCC sub vexillo una mittuntur: magna præterea multitudo calorum, magnâ vis jumentorum, quæ in castris subsederat, facta potestate, sequitur.

XXXVII. Hoc ipso tempore et casu Germani equitēs interveniunt, protinusque eodem illo, quo venerant, cursu ab decumana porta in castra irrupere conantur: nec prius sunt visi, objectis ab ea parte silvis, quam castris appropinquarent,¹ usque eo, ut, qui sub vallo tenderent² mercatores, recipiendi sui facultatem non haberent. Inopinantes nostri re nova perturbantur, ac vix primum impetum cohors in statione sustinet. Circumfunduntur ex reliquis hostes partibus, si quem aditum reperire possent.³ Ægre nostri portas tuentur, reliquos aditus locus ipse per se munitioque defendit. Totis trepidatur castris, atque alius ex alio causam tumultus quærit: neque quo signa ferantur, neque quam in partem quisque conveniat, provident. Alius capta jam castra pronunciat; alius, deleto exercitu atque imperatore, victores barbaros venisse contendit: plerique novas sibi ex loco religiones fingunt, Cottæque et Titurii calamitatem, qui in eodem occiderint⁴ castello, ante oculos ponunt. Tali timore omnibus perterritis, confirmatur opinio barbaris,⁵ ut ex captivo audierant, nullum esse intus præsidium. Perrumpere nituntur, seque ipsi adhortantur, ne tantam fortunam ex manibus dimittant.

XXXVIII. Erat æger in præsidio relictus P. Sextius Baculus, qui primum pilum ad Cæsarem¹ duxerat, ejus mentionem superioribus præliis fecimus,² ac diem jam quintum cibo caruerat. Hic, diffusus suæ atque omnium salutis, inermis ex tabernaculo, prodit: videt imminere hostes, atque in summo esse rem discrimine: capit arma, et proximis, atque in porta consistit. Consequuntur hunc centuriones ejus cohortis, quæ in statione erat: paulisper una prælium sustinent. Relinquit animus Sextium,³ gravibus acceptis vulneribus: ægre, per manus tractus,⁴ servatur. XXXIX. Interim confecta frumentatione, milites nostri clamorem exaudiunt; præcurrunt equites, quanto res sit in periculo, cognoscunt. Hic vero nulla munitio est, quæ perterritos recipiat:¹ modo conscripti atque usus militaris imperiti ad tribunum militum centurionesque ora convertunt: quid ab his præcipiatur expectant. Nemo est tam fortis, quin rei novitate perturbetur.² Barbari, signa procul conspicati, oppugnatione desistunt: redisse primo legiones credunt, quas longius discessisse ex captivis cognoverant: postea, despecta paucitate, ex omnibus partibus impetum faciunt.

XL. Calones in proximum tumultum procurrunt: hinc celeriter dejecti, se in signa manipulosque conjiciunt: eo magis¹ timidos perterrent milites. Alii, cuneo facto, ut celeriter perrumpant, censent,² quoniam tam propinqua sint³ castra; et, si pars aliqua circumventa ceciderit, at⁴ reliquos servari posse confidunt: alii, ut in iugo consistent, atque eundem omnes ferant casum. Hoc veteres non probant milites, quos sub vexillo una profectos docuimus. Itaque inter se cohortati, duce C. Trebonio, equite Romano, qui eis erat præpositus, per medios hostes perrumpunt, incolumesque ad unum omnes in castra perveniunt. Hos subsequuti calones equitesque eodem impetu, militum virtute servantur. At ii, qui in iugo constiterant, nullo etiam nunc usu rei militaris percepto, neque in eo, quod probaverant, consilio permanere, ut se loco superiore defenderent, neque eam, quam⁵ profuisse aliis vim celeritatemque viderant, imitari potuerunt; sed, se in castra recipere conati, iniquum in locum demiserant. Centuriones, quorum nonnulli ex inferioribus ordinibus reliquarum legionum virtutis causa in superiores erant ordines hujus legionis transducti, ne ante partem rei militaris laudem amitterent, fortissime pugnantes conciderunt. Militum pars, horum virtute submotis hostibus, præter spem incolumis in castra pervenit; pars a barbaris circumventa periit.

XLI. Germani, desperata expugnatione castrorum, quod nostros jam constitisse in munitionibus videbant, cum ea præda, quam in silvis deposuerant, trans Rhenum sese receperunt. Ac tantus fuit etiam post discessum hostium terror, ut ea nocte, quum C. Volusenus missus cum equitatu ad castra venisset, fidem non faceret, adesse cum incolumi Cæsarem exercitu. Sic omnium animos timor præoccupaverat, ut, pæne alienata mente, deletis omnibus copiis¹ equitatum tan-

LIBER VII.

I. QUIETA Gallia, Cæsar, ut constituerat, in Italiam¹ ad conventus agendos proficiscitur. Ibi cognoscit de Clodii cæde:² de senatusque consulto certior factus, ut omnes juniores Italiæ conjurarent,³ delectum tota provincia habere instituit. Hæ res in Galliam Transalpinam celeriter perferuntur. Addunt ipsi et affingunt rumoribus Galli, quod res poscere videbatur, ‘retineri urbano motu Cæsarem, neque in tantis dissensionibus ad exercitum venire posse.’ Hac impulsu occasione, qui jam ante se populi Romani imperio subiectos dolerent,⁴ liberius atque audacius de bello consilia inire incipiunt. Indictis inter se principes Galliæ conciliis silvestribus ac remotis locis queruntur de Acconis morte; hunc casum ad ipsos recidere posse demonstrant; miserantur communem Galliæ fortunam; omnibus pollicitationibus ac præmiis deposeunt, qui belli initium faciant,⁵ et sui capitis periculo Galliam in libertatem vindicent. ‘Ejus in primis rationem habendam,’⁶ dicunt, ‘priusquam eorum clandestina consilia efferantur,’⁷ ut Cæsar ab exercitu intercludatur. Qua oblata potestate, omnibus his civitatibus obsides imperat, certum numerum militum ad se celeriter adduci jubet; armorum quantum quæque civitas domi quodque ante tempus efficiat,² constituit; in primis equitatus studet. Summæ diligentiae summam imperii severitatem addit: magnitudine supplicii dubitantes cogit; nam, majore commisso delicto, igni atque omnibus tormentis necat; levio de causa, auribus desectis, aut singulis effossis oculis, domum remittit, ut sint reliquis documento, et magnitudine poenæ perterreant alios.

V His suppliciiis celeriter coacto exercitu, Lucterium Cadurcum, summæ hominem audaciæ, cum parte copiarum in Rutenos mittit: ipse in Bituriges proficiscitur. Ejus adventu Bituriges ad Æduos, quorum erant in fide, legatos mittunt subsidium rogatum, quo facilius hostium¹ copias sustinere possint. Ædui de consilio² legatorum, quos Cæsar ad exercitum³ reliquerat, copias equitatus peditatusque subsidio Biturigibus mittunt. Qui quum ad flumen Ligerim venissent, quod Bituriges ab Æduis dividit, paucos dies ibi morati, neque flumen transire ausi, domum revertuntur, legatisque nostris renunciant, 'se Biturigum perfidiam veritos revertisse, quibus⁴ id consilii⁵ fuisse cognoverint, ut, si flumen transissent,⁶ una ex parte ipsi, altera Arverni se circumstiterent.' Id eane de causa, quam legatis pronunciarunt, an perfidia adducti fecerint, quod nihil⁷ nobis constat, non videtur pro certo esse ponendum. Bituriges eorum discessu statim se cum Arvernīs conjungunt.

VI. His rebus in Italiam Cæsari nunciatis, quum jam ille urbanas res virtute Cn. Pompeii commodiorem in statum pervenisse intelligeret, in Transalpinam Galliam profectus est. Eo quum venisset, magna difficultate afficiebatur, qua ratione ad exercitum pervenire posset.¹ Nam si legiones in provinciam arcesseret, se absente in itinere prælio dimicaturas intelligebat: si ipse ad exercitum contenderet, ne iis quidem, qui eo tempore pacati viderentur, suam salutem recte committi² videbat.

Qua re nunciata, Cæsar omnibus consiliis¹ anteverendum existimavit, ut Narbonem proficisceretur. Eo quum venisset, timentes confirmat, præsidia in Rutenis provincialibus, Volcis, Arecomicis, Tolosatibus, circumque Narbonem, quæ loca hostibus erant finitima, constituit: partem copiarum ex provincia supplementumque, quod ex Italia adduxerat, in Helvios, qui fines Arvernorum contingunt, convenire jubet.

VIII. His rebus comparatis, represso jam Lueterio et remoto, quod intrare intra præsidia periculosum putabat,¹ in Helvios proficiscitur:² etsi mons Cevenna, qui Arvernos ab Helviis discludit, durissimo tempore anni, altissima nive iter impediebat; tamen discussa nive VI in altitudinem pedum, atque ita viis patefactis, summo militum labore ad fines Arvernorum pervenit. Quibus oppressis inopinantibus, quod se Cevenna, ut muro, munitos existimabant, ac ne singulari quidem unquam homini eo tempore anni semitæ paterant, equitibus imperat, ut, quam latissime possent,³ vagentur, et quam maximum hostibus terrorem inferant. Celeriter hæc fama ac nunciis ad Vercingetorigem perferuntur: quem perterriti omnes Arverni circumsistunt atque obsecrant, ut suis fortunis⁴ consulat, neu se ab hostibus diripi patiatur; præsertim quum videat omne ad se bellum translatum. Quorum ille precibus permotus, castra ex Biturigibus movet in Arvernos versus.

omnes cogit, quam de ejus adventu Arvernīs nunciari posset.³ Hac re cognita, Vercingetorix rursus in Bituriges exercitum reducit; atque inde profectus Gergoviam, Boiorum oppidum, quos ibi Helvetico praelio victos Cæsar collocaverat, Æduisque attribuerat, oppugnare instituit.

X. Magnam hæc res Cæsari difficultatem ad consilium capiendum afferebat: si reliquam partem hiemis uno in loco legiones contineret, ne,¹ stipendiariis Æduorum expugnatis, cuncta Gallia deficeret, quod nullum amicis² in eo præsidium videret³ positum esse; sin maturius ex hibernis educeret, ne ab⁴ re frumentaria duris subvectionibus laboraret. Præstare visum est tamen omnes difficultates perpeti, quam, tanta contumelia accepta, omnium suorum voluntates alienare. Itaque cohortatus Æduos de supportando comœatu, præmittit ad Boios, qui de suo adventu doceant,⁵ hortenturque, ut in fide maneant, atque hostium impetum magno animo sustineant. Duabus Agendici legionibus atque impedimentis totius exercitus relictis, ad Boios proficiscitur.

XI. Altero die quum ad oppidum Senonum Vellaunodunum venisset, ne quem post se hostem relinqueret, quo expeditiore re frumentaria uteretur, oppugnare instituit, idque biduo circumvallavit: tertio die missis ex oppido legatis de deditione, arma proferri, jumenta produci, DC obsides dari jubet. Ea qui conficeret,¹ C. Trebonium legatum, relinquit: ipse, ut quamprimum iter faceret,² Genabum Carnutum proficiscitur, qui, tum primum allato nuncio de oppugnatione Vellaunoduni, quum longius eam rem ductum iri existimarent, præsidium Genabi tuendi causa, quod eo mitterent,³ comparabant. Huc biduo pervenit: castris ante oppidum positis, diei tempore exclusus, in posterum oppugnationem differt, quæque ad eam rem usui sint, militibus imperat; et, quod oppidum Genabum pons fluminis Ligeris continebat,⁴ veritus ne noctu ex oppido profugerent,⁵ duas legiones in armis excubare jubet. XVI. Vercingetorix minoribus Cæsarem itineribus subsequitur, et locum castris deligit, paludibus silvisque munitum, ab Avarico longe millia passuum XVI. Ibi per certos exploratores in singula diei tempora,¹ quæ ad Avaricum agerentur, cognoscebat, et, quid fieri vellet, imperabat: omnes nostras pabulationes frumentationesque observabat, dispersosque, quum longius necessario procederent, adoriebatur, magnoque incommodo afficiebat: etsi, quantum ratione provideri poterat, ab nostris occurrebatur,² ut³ incertis temporibus diversisque itineribus iretur.

Castris ad eam partem oppidi positis, Cæsar,¹ quæ intermissa² a flumine et a palude aditum, ut supra diximus, angustum habebat, aggerem apparare, vineas agere, turres duas constituere cœpit: nam circumvallare loci natura prohibebat. De re frumentaria Boios atque Æduos adhortari non destitit: quorum alteri,³ quod nullo studio agebant, non multum⁴ adjuvabant; alteri non magnis facultatibus,⁵ quod civitas erat exigua et infirma, celeriter, quod habuerunt, consumpserunt. Summa difficultate rei frumentariæ affecto exercitu, tenuitate Boiorum, indiligentia Æduorum, incendiis ædificiorum, usque eo,⁶ ut complures dies milites frumento caruerint, et, pecore e longinquiore vicis adacto, extremam famem sustentarent, nulla tamen vox est ab iis audita populi Romani majestate et superioribus victoriis indigna. Quin etiam Cæsar quum in opere singulas legiones appellaret, et, si acerbius inopiam ferrent, se dimissurum oppugnationem diceret; universi ab eo, ‘ne id faceret,’ petebant: ‘sic se complures annos illo imperante meruisse,’⁷ ut nullam ignominiam acciperent, nunquam infecta re discederent: hoc se ignominiae laturos loco, si inceptam oppugnationem reliquissent: præstare omnes perferre acerbitates, quam non civibus Romanis, qui Genabi perfidia Gallorum interissent, parentarent.’⁸ Hæc eadem centurionibus tribunisque militum mandabant, ut per eos ad Cæsarem deferrentur.

XVIII. Quum jam muro turres appropinquassent, ex captivis Cæsar cognovit Vercingetorigem, consumpto pabulo, castra movisse propius Avaricum, atque ipsum cum equitatu expeditisque, qui inter equites præliari consuessent,¹ insidiarum causa eo profectum, quo nostros postero die pabulatum venturos arbitraretur. modi Gallorum occurrebant, ut est¹ summæ genas solertiæ atque ad omnia imitanda atque efficienda, quæ ab quoque tradantur, aptissimum. Nam et laqueis falces avertebant, quas quum destinaverant, tormentis introrsus reducebant; et aggerem cuniculis, subtrahebant, eo scientius, quod apud eos magnæ sunt ferrariæ, atque omne genus cuniculorum notum atque usitatum est. Totum autem murum ex omni parte turribus contabulaverant, atque has coriis intexerant. Tum crebris diurnis nocturnisque eruptionibus aut aggeri ignem inferebant, aut milites occupatos in opere adoriebantur; et nostrarum turrium altitudinem, quantum² has quotidianus agger expresserat, commissis suarum turrium malis, adæquabant; et apertos cuniculos³ præusta ac præacuta materia et pice fervefacta et maximi ponderis saxis morabantur, mœnibusque appropinquare prohibebant.

XXIII. Muris autem omnibus Gallicis hæc fere forma est. Trabes directæ, perpetuæ in longitudinem,¹ paribus intervallis distantes inter se binos pedes, in solo collocantur: hæc revinciuntur introrsus, et multo aggere vestiuntur. Ea autem, quæ diximus, intervalla grandibus in fronte saxis effarciuntur. His collocatis et coagmentatis, alius insuper ordo adjicitur, ut idem illud intervallum servetur, neque inter se contingant trabes, sed paribus intermissæ spatiis, singulæ singulis saxis interjectis arte contineantur.² Sic deinceps omne opus contextitur, dum justa muri altitudo expleatur.³ Hoc quum⁴ in speciem varietatemque opus deforme non est, alternis trabibus ac saxis,⁵ quæ rectis lineis suos ordines servant; tum ad utilitatem et defensionem urbium summam habet opportunitatem; quod et ab incendio lapis, et ab ariete materia defendit, quæ, perpetuis trabibus⁶ pedes quadragenos plerumque introrsus revincta, neque perrumpi neque distrahi potest.

Alii faces atque aridam materiam ad muro in aggerem eminus jaciebant, picem reliquasque res, quibus ignis excitari potest, fundebant; ut, quo primum occurreretur, aut cui rei ferretur auxilium, vix ratio iniri posset.³ Tamen, quod instituto Cæsaris duæ semper legiones pro castris excubabant, pluresque partitis temporibus erant in opere, celeriter factum est, ut alii eruptionibus resisterent, alii turres reducerent, aggeremque interseinderent, omnis vero ex castris multitudo ad restinguendum concurreret.

XXV Quum in omnibus locis, consumpta jam reliqua parte noctis, pugnaretur, semperque hostibus spes victoriæ redintegraretur, eo magis, quod deustos pluteos turrium videbant, nec facile adire¹ apertos ad auxiliandum animadvertabant; semperque ipsi recentes defessis succederent, omnemque Galliæ salutem in illo vestigio temporis positam arbitrarentur; accidit, inspectantibus nobis, quod, dignum memoria visum, prætermittendum non existimavimus. XXX. Fuit hæc oratio non ingrata Gallis, maxime, quod ipse animo non defecerat, tanto accepto incommodo, neque se in occultum abdiderat, et conspectum multitudinis fugerat: plusque¹ animo² providere et præsentire existimabatur, quod, re integra,³ primo incendendum Avaricum, post deserendum censuerat. Itaque ut reliquorum imperatorum res adversæ auctoritatem minuunt, sic hujus ex contrario dignitas, incommodo accepto, in dies augebatur: simul in spem veniebant ejus affirmatione, de reliquis adjungendis civitatibus; primumque eo tempore Galli castra munire instituerunt, et sic sunt animo² consternati homines insueti laboris, ut omnia, quæ imperarentur, sibi patienda et perferenda existimarent.

XXXI. Nec minus, quam est pollicitus, Vercingetorix animo laborabat, ut reliquas civitates adjungeret, atque earum principes donis pollicitationibusque alliciebat.¹ Huic rei idoneos homines deligebat, quorum quisque aut oratione subdola, aut amicitia facillime capi posset.² Qui Avarico expugnato refugerant, armandos vestiendosque curat. Reliqua qua ratione agi placeat, constitunt.

XXXVIII. Litavicus, accepto exercitu, quum millia passuum circiter XXX ab Gergovia abesset, convocatis subito militibus, lacrimans, "quo proficiscimur," inquit, "milites? Omnis noster equitatus, omnis nobilitas interiit: principes civitatis, Eporedorix et Viridomarus, insimulati proditiōis, ab Romanis indicta causa¹ interfecti sunt. Hæc ab iis cognoscite, qui ex ipsa cæde fugerunt: nam ego, fratribus atque omnibus propinquis meis interfectis, dolore prohibeor, quæ gesta sunt, pronunciare." Producentur ii, quos ille edocuerat, quæ dici vellet; atque eadem, quæ Litavicus pronuntiaverat, multitudini exponunt: "Omnes equites Æduorum interfectos, quod collocuti² cum Arvernīs dicerentur; ipsos se inter multitudinem militum occultasse, atque ex media cæde profugisse." Conclamant Ædui, et Litavicum, ut sibi consulat, obsecrant. "Quasi vero,"³ inquit ille, "consilii sit res,⁴ ac non necesse sit, nobis Gergoviam contendere et cum Arvernīs nosmet conjungere. An⁵ dubitamus, quin, nefario facinore admissio, Romani jam ad nos interficiendos concurrant? Proinde, si quid est in nobis animi, persequamur eorum mortem, qui indignissime interierunt, atque hos latrones interficiamus." Ostendit cives Romanos, qui ejus præsidii fiducia una⁶ erant. Continuo magnum numerum frumenti commeatusque diripit, ipsos crudeliter excruciatos interfecit: nuncios tota civitate Æduorum dimittit, eodem mendacio de cæde equitum et principum permovet: hortatur, ut simili ratione atque ipse fecerit, suas injurias persequantur.

XXXIX. Ex iis Eporedorix, cognito Litavici consilio, media fere nocte rem ad Cæsarem defert; orat, 'ne patiatúr civitatem pravis adolescentium consiliis ab amicitia populi Romani deficere; quod futurum provideat, si se tot hominum millia cum hostibus conjunxerint, quorum salutem neque propinqui² negligere, neque civitas levi momento³ æstimare posset.'

XL. Magna affectus sollicitudine hoc nuncio Cæsar, quod semper Æduorum civitati præcipue indulserat, nulla interposita dubitatione, legiones expeditas quatuor equitatumque omnem ex castris educit: nec fuit spatium tali tempore ad contrahenda¹ castra, quod res posita in celeritate videbatur. C. Fabium legatum cum legionibus II castris præsidio relinquit. Fratres Litavici quum comprehendere jussisset, paulo ante reperit ad hostes profugisse. Adhortatus milites, 'ne necessario tempore itineris labore permoveantur, cupidissimis omnibus, progressus millia passuum XXV, agmen Æduorum conspicatus, immisso equitatu, iter eorum moratur atque impedit, interdicitque omnibus, ne quemquam interficiant. Eporedorigem et Viridomarum, quos illi interfectos existimabant, inter equites versari suosque appellare jubet. Iis cognitis, et Litavici fraude perspecta, Ædúi manus tendere et deditionem significare et, projectis armis, mortem deprecari incipiunt. se in posterum diem similem ad casum parare.' His rebus cognitis, Cæsar summo studio militum ante ortum solis in castra pervenit.

XLII. Dum hæc ad Gergoviam geruntur, Ædui, primis nunciis ab Litavico acceptis, nullum sibi ad cognoscendum spatium relinquunt. Impellit alios avaritia, alios iracundia et temeritas, quæ maxime illi hominum generi¹ est innata, ut levem auditionem habeant pro re comperta. Bona civium Romanorum diripiunt, cædes faciunt, in servitutem abstrahunt. Adjuvat rem proclinatam Convictolitanis, plebemque ad furorem impellit, ut, facinore admissio, ad sanitatem pudeat² reverti. M. Aristium tribunum militum, iter ad legionem facientem, data fide ex oppido Cabillono educunt: idem facere cogunt eos, qui negotiandi causa ibi constiterant. Hos continuo in itinere adorti, omnibus impedimentis exuunt; repugnantes diem noctemque obsident; multis utrinque interfectis, majorem multitudinem ad arma concitant.

XLIII. Interim nuncio allato 'omnes eorum milites in potestate Cæsaris teneri,' concurrunt ad Aristium: nihil publico factum consilio demonstrant: quæstionem de bonis direptis decernunt: Litavici fratrumque bona publicant: legatos ad Cæsarem sui purgandi gratia mittunt. Hæc faciunt recuperandorum suorum causa: sed contaminati facinore, et capti compendio¹ ex direptis bonis, quod ea res ad multos pertinebat, et timore pænæ exterriti, consilia clam de bello inire incipiunt, civitatesque reliquas legationibus sollicitant. Quæ tametsi Cæsar intelligebat, tamen, quam mitissime potest, legatos appellat: 'Nihil se propter inscientiam levitatemque vulgi gravius de civitate judicare, neque de sua in Æduos benevolentia deminuere.' Ipse, majorem Galliæ motum exspectans, ne ab omnibus civitatibus circumsumeretur, consilia inibat, quemadmodum ab Gergovia discederet, ac rursus omnem exercitum contraheret; ne profectio, nata ab timore defectionis, similis fugæ videretur.

XLIV. Hæc cogitanti accidere visa est facultas bene gerendæ rei. Nam quum minora in castra operis perspiciendi causa venisset, animadvertit collem, qui ab hostibus tenebatur, nudatum hominibus, qui superioribus diebus vix præ multitudine cerni poterat. Admiratus quærit ex perfugis causam, quorum magnus ad eum quotidie numerus confluebat. Constabat inter omnes, quod¹ jam ipse Cæsar per exploratores cognoverat, dorsum esse ejus jugi prope XLV Hac re cognita, Cæsar mittit complures equitum turmas eo de media nocte: iis imperat, ut paulo tumultuosius omnibus in locis pervagarentur. Prima luce magnum numerum impedimentorum¹ ex castris mulorumque produci, eque iis stramenta detrahi, mulionesque cum cassidibus, equitum specie ac simulatione, collibus circumvehi jubet. Iis paucos addit equites, qui latius ostentationis causa vagarentur. Longo circuitu easdem omnes jubet petere regiones. Hæc procul ex oppido videbantur, ut erat a Gergovia despectus in castra; neque tanto spatio,² certi³ quid esset, explorari poterat. Legionem unam eodem jugo⁴ mittit, et paulo progressam inferiore constituit loco, silvisque occultat. Augetur Gallis suspicio, atque omnes illo ad munitionem copiæ transducuntur. Vacua castra hostium Cæsar conspicatus, tectis insignibus suorum, occultatisque signis militaribus, raros milites, ne ex oppido animadvertentur, ex majoribus castris in minora transducit, legatisque, quos singulis legionibus præfecerat, quid fieri velit, ostendit: in primis monet, ut contineant milites, ne studio pugnandi aut spe prædæ longius progrediantur: quid iniquitas loci habeat incommodi, proponit: 'hoc una celeritate posse vitari: occasionis⁵ esse rem, non prœlii.' His rebus expositis, signum dat, et ab dextera parte alio ascensu eodem tempore Æduos mittit.

XLVII. Consecutus id, quod animo proposuerat, Cæsar receptui cani¹ jussit, legionisque decimæ, qua tum erat comitatus, signa constitere. At reliquarum milites legionum, non exaudito tubæ sono, quod satis magna valles intercedebat, tamen ab tribūnis militum legatisque, ut erat a Cæsare præceptum, retinebantur: sed elati spe celeris victoriæ et hostium fuga superiorumque temporum secundis præliis, nihilo adeo arduum sibi existimabant, quod non virtute consequi possent;² neque prius finem sequendi fecerunt, quam muro oppidi portisque appropinquarent.³ Tum vero ex omnibus urbis partibus orto clamore, qui longius aberant, repentino tumultu perterriti, quum hostem intra portas esse existimarent, sese ex oppido ejece-runt. Matres familiæ de muro vestem argentumque jactabant, et pectoris fine prominentes, passis manibus obtestabantur Romanos, ut sibi parcerent, neu, sicut Avarici fecissent, ne mulieribus quidem atque infantibus abstinerent. Nonnullæ, de muris per manus demissæ, sese militibus tradebant. L. Fabius, centurio legionis VIII, quem inter suos eo die dixisse constabat, 'excitari se Avaricensibus præmiis,⁴ neque commissurum, ut prius quisquam murum ascenderet,' tres suos nactus manipulares, atque ab iis sublevatus, murum ascendit. Eos ipse rursus singulos exceptans, in murum extulit.

XLVIII. Interim ii, qui ad alteram partem oppidi, ut supra demonstravimus, munitionis causa convenerant, primo exaudito clamore, inde etiam crebris nunciis incitati, oppidum ab Romanis teneri,¹ præmissis equitibus, magno concursu eo contenderunt. Eorum ut quisque primas venerat, sub muro consistebat, suorumque pugnantium numerum augebat. Ipse paulum ex eo loco cum legione progressus, ubi constiterat, eventum pugnae expectabat.

L. Quum acerrime cominus pugnaretur, hostes loco et numero, nostri virtute confiderent; subito sunt Ædui visi, ab latere nostris¹ aperto, quos Cæsar ab dextra parte alio ascensu manus distinendæ² causa miserat. Hi similitudine armorum vehementer nostros perterritaverunt: ac, tametsi dextris humeris exsertis animadvertebantur, quod insigne pacatis esse consuevit, tamen id ipsum sui fallendi causa milites ab hostibus factum existimabant. Eodem tempore L. Fabius centurio quique una murum ascenderant, circumventi atque interfecti de muro præcipitantur. M. Petreius, ejusdem legionis centurio, quum portas excidere conatus esset, a multitudine oppressus, ac sibi desperans, multis jam vulneribus acceptis, manipularibus suis, qui illum secuti erant, "quoniam," inquit, "me una vobiscum servare non possum, vestrae quidem certæ vitæ prospiciam, quos cupiditate gloriæ adductus in periculum deduxi. Vos, data facultate, vobis consulite." Simul in medios hostes irrupit, duobusque interfectis, reliquos a porta paulum submovit. Conantibus auxiliari suis, "frustra," inquit, "meæ vitæ subvenire conamini, quem³ jam sanguis viresque deficiunt. Proinde hinc abite, dum est facultas, vosque ad legionem recipite." Ita pugnans, post paulum concidit, ac suis saluti fuit.

LI. Nostri quum undique premerentur, XLVI centurionibus amissis, dejecti sunt loco: sed intolerantius Gallos insequentes legio X tardavit, quæ pro subsidio paulo æquiore loco constiterat. Quanto opere eorum animi magnitudinem admiraretur, quos non castrorum munitiones, non altitudo montis, non murus oppidi tardare potuisset; tanto opere licentiam arrogantiamque reprehendere, quod plus se, quam imperatorem, de victoria atque exitu rerum sentire existimarent: nec minus se in milite modestiam et continentiam, quam virtutem atque animi magnitudinem desiderare.'

LIII. Hac habita concione, et ad extremum oratione confirmatis militibus, 'ne ob hanc causam animo permoverentur, neu, quod iniquitas loci attulisset, id virtuti hostium tribuerent;' eadem de perfectione¹ cogitans, quæ ante senserat, legiones ex castris eduxit, aciemque idoneo loco constituit. Quum Vercingetorix nihilo magis² in æquum locum descenderet, levi facto equestri prælio atque eo secundo, in castra exercitum reduxit.³ Quum hoc idem postero die fecisset, satis ad Gallicam ostentationem minuendam militumque animos confirmandos factum existimans, in Æduos castra movit. Ne tum quidem insecutis hostibus, tertio die ad flumen Elaver pontem refecit, atque exercitum transduxit.

LIV. Ibi a Viridomaro atque Eporedorige Æduis appellatus, discit cum omni equitatu Litavicum ad sollicitandos Æduos profectum esse: opus esse et ipsos præcedere ad confirmandam civitatem. Etsi multis jam rebus perfidiam Æduorum perspectam habebat, atque horum discessu admaturari defectionem civitatis existimabat; tamen eos retinendos non censuit, ne aut inferre injuriam videretur, aut dare timoris aliquam suspicionem. Discedentibus his breviter sua in Æduos merita exponit: 'Quos et quam humiles accepisset,¹ compulsos in oppida, multatos agris, omnibus ereptis copiis, imposito stipendio, obsidibus summa cum contumelia extortis; et quam in fortunam quamque in amplitudinem deduxisset, ut non solum in pristinum statum redissent, sed omnium temporum dignitatem et gratiam antecessisse viderentur.' His datis mandatis, eos ab se dimisit.

tum, pecuniam publicam, suorum atque exercitus impedimentorum magnam partem contulerat: huc magnum numerum equorum, hujus belli causa in Italia atque Hispania coemptum, miserat. Eo quum Eporedorix Viridomarusque venissent, et de statu civitatis cognovissent, Litavicum Bibracte¹ ab Æduis receptum, quod est oppidum apud eos maximæ auctoritatis, Convictolitanem magistratum magnamque partem Senatus ad eum convenisse, legatos ad Vercingetorigem de pace et amicitia concilianda publice missos; non præmittendum tantum commodum existimaverunt. Itaque, interfectis Novioduni custodibus, quique eo negotiandi aut itineris² causa convenerant, pecuniam atque equos inter se partiti sunt; obsides civitatum Bibracte ad magistratum deducendos curaverunt; oppidum, quod ab se teneri non posse judicabant, ne cui esset usui Romanis, incenderunt; frumenti quod³ subito potuerunt, navibus avexerunt, reliquum flumine atque incendio corruerunt; ipsi ex finitimis regionibus copias cogere, præsidia custodiasque ad ripas Ligeris disponere, equitatumque omnibus locis, injiciendi timoris causa, ostentare cœperunt, si ab re frumentaria Romanos excludere, [aut adductos inopia ex provincia excludere⁴] possent. Quam ad spem multum eos adjuvabat, quod Liger ex nivibus creverat, ut omnino vado non posse transiri videretur.

LVI. Quibus rebus cognitis, Cæsar maturandum sibi censuit, si esset in perficiendis pontibus periclitandum, ut prius, quam essent majores eo coactæ copiæ, dimicaret. Nam ut commutato consilio iter in provinciam converteret,¹ (ut² nemo non tunc quidem necessario faciendum existimabat,) quum³ infamia atque indignitas rei, et oppositus mons Cevenna viarumque difficultas impediēbat, tum maxime, quod abjuncto Labieno⁴ atque iis legionibus, quas una miserat, vehementer timebat. Itaque, admodum magnis diurnis atque nocturnis itineribus confectis, contra omnium opinionem ad Ligerim pervenit; vadoque per equites invento, pro⁵ rei necessitate opportuno, ut brachia modo atque humeri ad sustinenda arma liberi ab aqua esse possent, disposito equitatu, qui vim fluminis refringeret, atque hostibus primo aspectu perturbatis, incolumem exercitum transduxit: frumentumque in agris et copiam pecoris nactus, repleto iis rebus exercitu, iter in Senonas facere instituit.

LVII. Dum hæc apud Cæsarem geruntur, Labienus eo supplemento, quod nuper ex Italia venerat, relicto Agendici, ut esset impedimentis præsidio, cum quatuor legionibus Lutetiam proficiscitur. Id est oppidum Parisiorum, positum in insula fluminis Sequanæ. Cujus adventu ab hostibus cognito, magnæ ex finitimis civitatibus copiæ convenerunt. Summa imperii traditur Camulogeno Aulero, qui, prope confectus ætate, tamen propter singularem scientiam rei militaris ad eum est honorem evocatus. Is quum animadvertisset perpetuam esse paludem, quæ influeret in Sequanam, atque illum omnem locum magnopere impediret, hic consedit, nostrosque transitu prohibere instituit.

LVIII. Labienus primo vineas agere, cratibus atque aggere paludem explere atque iter munire conabatur. Postquam id difficilius confieri animadvertit, silentio e castris tertia vigilia egressus, eodem, quo venerat, itinere Melodunum pervenit. Id est oppidum Senonum, in insula Sequanæ positum, ut paulo ante Lutetiam¹ diximus. Deprehensis navibus circiter L, celeriterque conjunctis, atque eo militibus impositis, et rei novitate perterritis oppidanis, quorum magna pars erat ad bellum evocata, sine contentione oppido potitur. Refecto ponte, quem superioribus diebus hostes resciderant, exercitum transducit, et secundo flumine ad Lutetiam iter facere cœpit. Hostes, re cognita ab iis, qui a Meloduno profugerant, Lutetiam incendunt, pontesque ejus oppidi rescindi jubent: ipsi profecti a palude, in ripis Sequanæ, e regione Lutetiæ, contra Labieni castra considunt.

LIX. Jam Cæsar a Gergovia discessisse audiebatur: jam de Æduorum defectione et secundo¹ Galliæ motu rumores afferebantur,² Gallique in colloquiis, 'interclusum itinere et Ligeri Cæsarem, inopia frumenti coactum, in provinciam contendisse' confirmabant. Bellovaci autem, defectione Æduorum cognita, qui ante erant per se infideles, manus cogere atque aperte bellum parare cœperunt. Tum Labienus, tanta rerum commutatione, longè aliud sibi capiendum consilium, atque antea senserat, intelligebat: neque jam, ut aliquid acquireret, prælioque hostes lacesseret, sed ut incolumem exercitum Agendicium reduceret, cogitabat. Namque altera ex parte Bellovaci, quæ civitas in Gallia maximam habet opinionem virtutis, instabant; alteram Camulogenus parato atque instructo exercitu tenebat: tum legiones, a præsidio atque impedimentis interclusas maximum flumen distinebat. Tantis subito difficultatibus objectis, ab animi virtute auxilium petendum videbat.

LX. Itaque sub vesperum consilio convocato, cohortatus, ut ea, quæ imperasset, diligenter industrieque administrarent, naves, quas a Meloduno deduxerat, singulas equitibus Romanis attribuit, et prima confecta vigilia, quatuor millia passuum secundo flumine progredi silentio, ibique se expectari jubet. Quinque cohortes, quas minime firmas ad dimicandum esse existimabat, castris præsidio relinquit: quinque ejusdem legionis reliquas de media nocte cum omnibus impedimentis adverso flumine magno tumultu proficisci imperat. Conquirat etiam lintres. Has, magno sonitu remorum inicitatas, in eandem partem mittit. Ipse post paulo, silentio egressus, cum tribus legionibus eum locum petit, quo naves appellii jusserat.

LXI. Eo quum esset ventum, exploratores hostium, ut omni fluminis parte erant dispositi, inopinantes, quod magna subito erat coorta tempestas, ab nostris opprimuntur: exercitus equitatusque, equitibus Romanis administrantibus, quos ei negotio præfecerat, celeriter transmittitur. Uno fere tempore sub lucem hostibus nunciatur, in castris Romanorum præter consuetudinem tumultuari,¹ et magnum ire agmen adverso flumine, sonitumque remorum in eadem parte exaudiri, et paulo infra milites navibus transportari. Quibus rebus auditis, quod existimabant tribus locis transire legiones, atque omnes, perturbatos defectione Æduorum, fugam parare, suas quoque copias in tres partes distribuerunt. Nam, et præsidio e regione castrorum relicto, et parva manu Metiosedum versus missa, quæ tantum² progredieretur,³ quantum naves processissent, reliquas copias contra Labienum duxerunt.

LXII. Prima luce et nostri omnes erant transportati, et hostium acies cernebatur. Labienus, milites cohortatus, 'ut suæ pristinæ virtutis et tot secundissimorum præliorum memoriam retinerent, atque ipsum Cæsarem, cujus ductu sæpenumero hostes superassent, præsentem adesse existimarent,' dat signum prælii. Primo concursu ab dextro cornu, ubi septima legio constiterat, hostes pelluntur, atque in fugam conjiciuntur: ab sinistro, quem locum duodecima legio tenebat, quum primi ordines hostium transfixi pilis concidissent, tamen acerrime reliqui resistebant, nec dabat suspensionem fugæ quisquam. Ipse dux hostium Camulogenus suis aderat, atque eos cohortabatur. At, incerto etiam nunc exitu victoriæ, quum septimæ legionis tribunis esset nunciatum, quæ in sinistro cornu gererentur, post tergum hostium legionem ostenderunt, signaque intulerunt. Ne eo quidem tempore quisquam loco cessit, sed circumventi omnes interfectique sunt. Eandem fortunam tulit Camulogeneus. At ii, qui præsidio contra castra Labieni erant relictī, quum prælium commissum audissent, subsidio suis ierunt, collemque ceperunt, neque nostrorum militum victorum impetum sustinere potuerunt. Sic, cum suis fugientibus permixti, quos¹ non silvæ montesque texerunt, ab equitatu sunt interfecti. Hoc negotio confecto, Labienus revertitur Agendicum, ubi impedimenta totius exercitus collecta erant. Inde cum omnibus copiis ad Cæsarem pervenit.

LXIII. Defectione Æduorum cognita, bellum augetur. Legionibus omnes partes circummittuntur, quantum² gratia, auctoritas, pecunia valeant, et sollicitandas civitates nituntur. Necti obsides, quæ ab eis apud eos deposuerat, horum supplicio dubitantes remittant. Petunt a Vercingetorige Ædui, ad se veniat,⁴ rationesque belli gerendi comarascunt. Re impetrata contendunt, ut ipsis summa imperii tradatur: et, re in controversiam deducta, totius Galliæ concilium Bibracte indicitur. Eodem conveniunt undique frequentes. Multitudinis suffragiis res permittitur: ad unum omnes Vercingetorigem probant imperatorem. Ab hoc concilio Remi, Lingones, Treviri abfuerunt: illi, quod amicitiam Romanorum sequebantur; Treviri, quod aberant longius, et ab Germanis premebantur: quæ fuit causa, quare toto abessent bello, et neutris auxilia mitterent. Magno dolore Ædui ferunt se dejectos principatu; queruntur fortunæ commutationem, et Cæsaris indulgentiam in se requirunt; neque tamen, suscepto bello, suum consilium ab reliquis separare audent. Inviti summæ spei adolescentes, Eporedorix et Viridomarus, Vercingetorigi parent.

LXIV. Ille imperat reliquis civitatibus obsides: denique ei rei constituit diem: huc omnes equites, XV millia numero, celeriter convenire jubet: ‘Peditatu, quem ante habuerit, se fore contentum’ dicit, ‘neque fortunam tentaturum, aut in acie dimicaturum; sed, quoniam abundet equitatu, perfacile esse factu frumentationibus pabulationibusque Romanos prohibere; æquo modo animo sua ipsi frumenta corrumpant,¹ ædificiaque incendant, qua rei familiaris jactura perpetuum imperium libertatemque se consequi videant.’ His constitutis rebus, Æduis Segusianisque, qui sunt finitimi provinciæ, X millia peditum imperat: huc addit equites DCCC. Nihilominus clandestinis nunciis legationibusque Allobrogas sollicitat, quorum mentes nondum ab superiore bello resedissee sperabat. Horum principibus pecunias; civitati autem imperium totius provinciae pollicetur.

LXV Ad hos omnes casus provisa erant praesidia cohortium duarum et viginti, quae ex ipsa coacta provincia ab L. Caesare¹ legato ad omnes partes opponebantur. Helvii, sua sponte cum finitimis praelio congressi, pelluntur, et C. Valerio Donotauro, Gabum filio, principe civitatis, compluribusque aliis interfectis, intra oppida murosque compelluntur. Allobroges, crebris ad Rhodanum dispositis praesidiis, magna cum cura et diligentia suos fines tuentur. Caesar, quod hostes equitatu superiores esse intelligebat, et, interclusis omnibus itineribus, nulla re ex provincia atque Italia sublevari poterat, trans Rhenum in Germaniam mittit ad eas civitates, quas superioribus annis pacaverat, equitesque ab his accessit et levis armaturae pedites, qui inter eos praeliari consueverant. Eorum adventu, quod minus idoneis equis utebantur, a tribunis militum reliquisque, sed et equitibus Romanis atque evocatis, equos sumit, Germanisque distribuit.

LXVI. Interea, dum haec geruntur, hostium copiae ex Arvernīs equitesque, qui toti Galliae erant imperati, conveniunt. Magno horum coacto numero, quum Caesar in Sequanos per extremos Lingonum fines iter faceret, quo facilius subsidium provinciae ferri posset, circiter millia passuum X ab Romanis trinis castris Vercingetorix consedit; convocatisque ad concilium praefectis equitum, ‘venisse tempus victoriae’ demonstrat: ‘fugere in provinciam Romanos Galliaeque excedere: id sibi ad praesentem obtinendam libertatem satis esse; ad reliqui temporis pacem atque otium parum profici;’¹ majoribus enim coactis copiis reversuros, neque finem belli facturos. LXVII. Probata re, atque omnibus ad jusjurandum adactis, postero die in tres partes distributo equitatu, duæ se acies ab duobus lateribus ostendunt: una a primo agmine iter impedire cœpit. Quare nunciata, Cæsar suum quoque equitatum, tripartito divisum, ire contra hostem jubet. Pugnatur una¹ tunc omnibus in partibus: consistit agmen: impedimenta inter legiones recipiuntur. Si qua in partem nostri laborare aut gravius premi videbantur, eo signa inferri Cæsar aciemque converti jubebat: quæ res et hostes ad insequendum tardabat, et nostros spe auxilii confirmabat. Tandem Germani ab dextro latere, summum jugum nacti, hostes loco depellunt; fugientes usque ad flumen,² ubi Vercingetorix cum pedestribus copiis consederat, persequuntur, compluresque interficiunt. Quare animadversa, reliqui, ne circumvenirentur, veriti, se fugæ mandant. Omnibus locis fit cædes: tres nobilissimi Ædui capti ad Cæsarem perducuntur: Cotus, præfectus equitum, qui controversiam cum Convictolitane proximis comitiis³ habuerat; et Cavarillus, qui post defectionem Litavici pedestribus copiis præfuerat; et Eporedorix, quo duce ante adventum Cæsaris Ædui cum Sequanis bello contenderant.

LXVIII. Fugato omni equitatu, Vercingetorix copias suas, ut pro castris collocaverat, reduxit; protinusque Alesiam, quod est oppidum Mandubiorum, iter facere cœpit; celeriterque impeditur ex castris educi et se subsequi jussit. Cæsar, impedimentis in summum collem deductis, duabusque legionibus præsidio relictis, tantum, quantum diei tempus est passum, circiter tribus millibus militum ex novissimo agmine interfectis, altero die ad Alesiam castra fecit. Perspecto urbis situ, perterritisque hostibus, quod equitatu, qua maxime parte exercitus confidebant, erant pulsi, adhortatus ad laborem milites, Alesiam circumvallare instituit.

LXIX. Ipsum erat oppidum in colle summo, admodum edito loco, ut, nisi obsidione, expugnari non posse videretur. Cujus confines duae duabus ex partibus flumina¹ subleebant. pari altitudinis fastigio, oppidum cingebant. Sub muro, quæ pars collis ad orientem solem spectabat, hunc omnem locum copiæ Gallorum compleverant, fossamque et maceriam sex in altitudinem pedum prædixerant. Ejus munitionis, quæ ab Romanis instituebatur, circuitus XI millium passuum² tenebat. Castra opportunitis locis erant posita, ibique castella XXIII facta; quibus in castellis interdum stationes disponebantur, ne qua subito irruptio fieret: hæc eadem noctu excubitoribus ac firmis præsidiis tenébantur.

LXX. Opere instituto, fit equestre proelium in ea planitie, quam, intermissam collibus,¹ III millia passuum in longitudinem patere supra demonstravimus. Summa vi ab utrisque contenditur. Laborantibus nostris Cæsar Germanos submittit, legionesque pro castris constituit, ne qua subito irruptio ab hostium peditatu fiat. Præsidio legionum addito, nostris animus augetur: hostes, in fugam coniecti, se ipsi multitudine impediunt, atque angustioribus² portis relictis³ coarctantur. Tum Germani acrius usque ad munitiones sequuntur. Fit magna cædes. Nonnulli, relictis equis, fossam transire et maceriam transcendere conantur. Paulum legiones Cæsar, quas pro vallo constituerat, promoveri jubet: Non minus, qui intra munitiones erant, Galli perturbantur; veniri ad se confestim existimantes, ad arma conclamant; nonnulli perterriti in oppidum irrumpunt. Vercingetorix jubet portas claudi, Ne castra nudentur. Multis interfectis, compluribus equis captis, Germani sese recipiunt.

LXXI. Vercingetorix, priusquam munitiones ab Romanis perficiantur,¹ consilium capit, omnem ab se equitatum noctu dimittere.² Discedentibus mandat, ut 'suam quisque eorum civitatem adeat, omnesque, qui per ætatem arma ferre possint, ad bellum cogant: sua in illos merita' proponit, obtestaturque, 'ut suæ salutis rationem habeant, neu se, de communi libertate optime meritum, in cruciatum hostibus dedant: quod si indiligentiores fuerint, millia hominum deleta LXXX una secum interitura' demonstrat: 'ratione inita, frumentum se exigue dierum XXX habere, sed paulo etiam longius tolerare posse parcendo.' His datis mandatis, qua erat nostrum opus intermissum, secunda vigilia silentio equitatum dimittit: frumentum omne ad se ferri jubet; capitis poenam iis, qui non paruerint, constituit: pecus, cujus magna erat ab Mandubiis compulsa copia, viritim distribuit; frumentum parce et paulatim metiri instituit; copias omnes, quas pro oppido collocaverat, in oppidum re-LXXII. Quibus rebus ex perfugis et captivis cognitis, Cæsar hæc genera munitionis instituit. Fossam pedum XX directis lateribus duxit, ut ejus solum tantundem pateret,¹ quantum summa labra distabant. Reliquas omnes munitiones ab ea fossa pedes CD reduxit:² id hoc consilio, (quoniam tantum esset necessario spatium complexus, nec facile totum opus militum corona cingeretur,) ne de improviso aut noctu ad munitiones hostium multitudo advolaret, aut interdiu tela in nostros, operi destinatos, conjicere possent. Hoc intermisso spatio,³ duas fossas, XV pedes latas, eadem altitudine perduxit: quarum interiorem, campestribus ac demissis locis, aqua ex flumine derivata complevit. Post eas aggerem ac vallum XII pedum exstruxit: huic⁴ loricam pinnaeque adiecit, grandibus cervis eminentibus ad commissuras pluteorum atque aggeris, qui ascensum hostium tardarent; et turres toto opere⁵ circumdedit, quæ pedes LXXX inter se distarent.

LXXIII. Erat eodem tempore et materiari et frumentari et tantas munitiones fieri necesse, deminutis nostris copiis, quæ longius ab castris progrediebantur: ac nonnunquam opera nostra Galli tentare atque eruptionem ex oppido pluribus portis summa vi facere conabantur. Quare ad hæc, rursus opera addendum Cæsar putavit, quo minore numero militum munitiones defendi possent. Itaque truncis arborum aut admodum firmis ramis abscisis, atque horum delibratis atque præacutis cacuminibus, perpetuæ¹ fossæ, quinos pedes altæ, ducebantur. Huc illi stipites demissi,² et ab infimo revincti, ne revelli possent, ab ramis eminebant.³ Quini erant ordines, conjuncti inter se atque implicati; quo qui intraverant, se ipsi acutissimis vallis induebant. LXXX. Cæsar, omni exercitu ad utramque partem munitionum disposito, ut, si usus veniat, suum quisque locum teneat et noverit, equitatum ex castris educi et prælium committi jubet. Erat ex omnibus¹ castris, quæ summum undique jugum tenebant, despectus: atque omnium militum intenti animi pugnae preventum expectabant. Galli inter equites raros sagittarios expeditosque levis armaturæ interjecerant, qui suis cedentibus auxilio succurrerent, et nostrorum equitum impetum sustinerent. Ab his complures de improvviso vulnerati prælio excedebant. Quod in conspectu omnium res gerebatur, neque recte, ac turpiter factum celari poterat, utrosque et laudis cupiditas et timor ignominiae ad virtutem excitabant. Quum a meridie prope ad solis occasum dubia victoria pugnaretur, Germani³ una in parte confertis turmis in hostes impetum fecerunt, eosque propulerunt: quibus in fugam conjectis, sagittarii circumventi interfectique sunt. Prospectu tenebris adempto, multa utrimque vulnera accipiuntur; complura tormentis tela conjiciuntur. At M. Antonius et C. Trebonius, legati, quibus eae partes ad defendendum obveniant, qua ex parte nostros premi intellexerant, iis auxilio ex ulterioribus castellis deductos submittebant.

Dum longius ab munitione aberant Galli, plus multitudine telorum proficiebant: posteaquam propius successerunt, aut se ipsi stimulis inopinantes inducunt, aut in scrobes delapsi transfodiebantur, aut ex vallo et turribus transjecti pilis muralibus interibant. Multis undique vulneribus acceptis, nulla munitione perrupta, quum lux appeteret, veriti, ne ab latere aperto ex superioribus castris eruptione circumvenirentur, se ad suos receperunt. At interiores, dum ea, quae a Vercingetorige ad eruptionem praeparata erant, proferunt, priores fossas explent; diutius in iis rebus administrandis morati, prius suos discessisse cognoverunt, quam munitionibus appropinquarent.¹ Ita, re infecta, in oppidum reverterunt.

Ille ex castris prima vigilia egressus, prope confecto sub lucem itinere, post montem se occultavit, militesque ex nocturno labore sese reficere iussit. Quum jam meridiem appropinquare videretur, ad ea castra, quae supra demonstravimus, contendit: eodemque tempore equitatus ad campestras munitiones accedere, et reliquae copiae sese pro castris ostendere coeperunt.

Romanorum manus tantis munitionibus distinetur, nec facile pluribus locis occurrit. Multum ad terrendos nostros valuit clamor, qui post tergum pugnantibus¹ exstitit, quod suum periculum in aliena² vident virtute consistere: omnia enim plerumque, quæ absunt, vehementius hominum mentes perturbant.

LXXXV. Cæsar idoneum locum nactus, quid quaque in parte geratur, cognoscit, laborantibus auxilium submittit. Utrisque¹ ad animum occurrit unum illud esse tempus, quo maxime contendere conveniat. Galli, nisi perfringerint munitiones, de omni salute desperant: Romani, si rem obtinuerint,² finem omnium laborum expectant. Maxime ad superiores munitiones laboratur, quo Vergasillaunum missum demonstravimus. Exiguum loci ad declivitatem³ fastigium magnum habet momentum. Alii tela conjiciunt; alii, testudine facta, subeunt; defatigatis in vicem integri succedunt. Agger, ab universis in munitionem coniectus, et ascensum dat Gallis, et ea, quæ in terram occultaverant Romani, contegit: nec jam arma nostris, nec vires suppetunt.

LXXXVI. His rebus cognitis, Cæsar Labienum cum cohortibus VI subsidio laborantibus mittit: imperat, si sustinere non possit, deductis cohortibus eruptione pugnet; id, nisi necessario, ne faciat. Ipse adit reliquos; cohortatur, ne labori succumbant; omnium superiorum dimicationum fructum in eo die atque hora docet consistere. Interiores, desperatis campestribus locis propter magnitudinem munitionum, loca prærupta ex ascensu¹ tentant: huc ea, quæ paraverant, conferunt: multitudine telorum ex turribus propugnantes² deturbant: aggere et cratibus fossas explent, aditus expediunt: falcibus vallum ac loricam rescindunt.

LXXXVII. Cæsar mittit primo Brutum adolescentem cum cohortibus sex, post cum aliis septem C. Fabium legatum: postremo ipse, quum vehementius pugnarent, integros subsidio adducit. CAIUS JULIUS CÆSAR.

[FROM SCHMITZ'S CÆSAR.]

CAIUS JULIUS CÆSAR, one of the most distinguished characters in Roman history, was the son of C. Julius Cæsar and Aurelia—a woman not unworthy of being ranked with Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi—and was born on the 12th of Quintilis (July), in the year B. C. 100. He lost his father at the age of sixteen, but his mother was still living at the time of his victorious career in Gaul. By her his education was superintended with the utmost care and the facility with which he comprehended the most difficult subjects submitted to him, and the zeal he displayed in the acquisition of knowledge, produced a strong conviction that he would one day exercise great influence on the affairs of his country. Beyond this, little is known respecting his early youth for the two biographies which we have of him by Plutarch and Suetonius are unfortunately defective, the beginning being wanting in both.

The period at which Cæsar appeared was towards the close of the Roman republic, when an eminently favorable opportunity was offered for the display of great and varied talents. The state was torn asunder by contending factions; the virtue of the ancient republic had departed; and ambitious men were fiercely struggling for family aggrandisement, and aiming at sovereign power. On the one hand were an aristocracy exclusive in spirit, and enriched by the plunder of the provinces; on the other a populace, ignorant, demoralised, and ready on all occasions to clamor for, and give support to, those who were the most lavish in their bribes and public entertainments. Sulla, the champion of the nobles, supported by the senate, had just achieved a signal triumph over Marius, the leader of the popular party, and had been raised to the dictatorship—an office which gave him the first authority in the state, and enabled him to exercise the most tyrannic sway. Cæsar, both from inclination and from family connexion, joined the popular party, and thus incurred the hatred of Sulla, who had already regarded him with jealousy, on account of his connexion with Marius, who was married to his aunt Julia. This dislike at length found vent, when Cæsar, in B.C. 83, married Cornelia, daughter of L. Cinna, another of the political opponents of the newly-appointed dictator. Sulla now commanded Cæsar to divorce Cornelia; but the young hero resolutely defied the order, and refused to part with his beloved wife—an act of daring resistance, for at this time all Rome trembled before the tyrant. In consequence of this conduct, Cæsar was deprived of the priestly dignity of flamen Dialis, to which he had been shortly before appointed; also of the dowry of his wife, and of his own property; and if he had remained at Rome, his life would undoubtedly have been sacrificed. He therefore withdrew into the country, until he was pardoned through the mediation of the vestal virgins and some of his friends; though Sulla forgave him with reluctance, remarking that this young man would be the ruin of the aristocracy, for that many Mariuses were slumbering in him.

Instead of remaining at home, Cæsar preferred serving in the army, which was then engaged in Asia Minor; and he there so much distinguished himself, that he was rewarded with a civic crown. In B.C. 78 he was serving under P. Servilius against the Isaurians and pirates, when the news of Sulla's death induced him to return to Rome. He was too prudent, and had too little confidence in Lepidus, to join him in his attempt to abolish the institutions of the late dictator; and like most young Romans of his time, he began his public career as an orator in the courts of justice. He accused several of the partisans of Sulla who had been guilty of extortion and oppression in the provinces: but his first efforts were unsuccessful, not from his want of power as an orator, but because it was a matter of vital importance to the aristocracy to obtain the acquittal of the culprits. Hereupon, either with a view of escaping from the assaults of his enemies, or for the purpose of devoting his time to the cultivation of his mind, he withdrew to the island of Rhodes, where he studied under the celebrated rhetorician Apollonius Molo. On his way thither he was taken prisoner, in the neighborhood of Miletus, by the pirates, who at that time scourged the Mediterranean in all directions. Their object, however, was only to extort money; and the servants of Cæsar, who were sent out, succeeded 'in thirty-eight days' in obtaining the sum of fifty talents, with which he ransomed himself. While in the hands of the pirates, Cæsar gave proofs of his extraordinary mind, and of the power which he exercised over all with whom he came in contact. So far from conducting himself as their captive, he treated them as if he had been their master, without their venturing to punish him; and no sooner had he regained his liberty, than he manned some ships in the port of Miletus, attacked the pirates, took several of them prisoners, and crucified them, although he was not invested with any official power or authority.

His stay in Rhodes did not extend beyond one year; and in B. C. 74, when Mithridates, king of Pontus, resumed hostilities against the Romans, Cæsar, though still a private person, collected a small force, by which he kept the wavering towns in Asia Minor in submission to Rome. Before the end of the year he returned home, having been elected pontiff in the place of his uncle, C. Aurelius Cotta. Upon his arrival, he used every means to increase his popularity; and as his property was not large, he borrowed money from the usurers, who willingly gave him what he demanded, though they had no security except his honesty, and the prospect that some public office might afford him the means of paying his debts. Not long after, he was elected by the people one of the tribunes of the soldiers, though we do not know whether he fought in any of the wars which were then carried on against Mithridates, Sertorius, and Spartacus. It is certain, however, that he acted a prominent part in the upsetting of the Sullanian institutions, which was brought about by Pompey and L. Aurelius Cotta; and this was sufficient to establish him in the popular favor. In B. C. 68 he obtained the quaestorship, an office which was the first stepping-stone to the great magistracies of the republic. In this capacity he was sent to Spain, where he distinguished himself chiefly in conducting the lawsuits which were brought before him in the various towns of the province. On his return he married Pompeia, a daughter of Q. Pompeius Rufus—Cornelia having died before he went to Spain. This marriage was undoubtedly intended to secure the friendship of Pompey, who allowed himself more and more to be drawn over to the popular party by Cæsar, the latter attacking and ridiculing the aristocracy on every occasion. Cæsar apparently acted as the champion of Pompey; but he knew that his friend could not stand without him, and that, in the end, he himself would be the first man in the republic: he, in fact, used Pompey only as an instrument to break the power of the aristocracy. With these objects in view, he supported him in all his undertakings, and took no small share in obtaining for him the command in the war against the pirates, and afterwards in that against Mithridates.

In B. C. 65 he was elected curule aedile. It had been customary, for a long time, for persons entering on this office, to endeavor to gain popularity by entertaining the people with splendid games and public amusements, and so secure their favor and support in the elections for higher offices. Although Cæsar had no great means of his own, his aedileship surpassed in splendor and magnificence all that had ever been seen at Rome. His liberality was boundless; and in the games which were celebrated in the circus, there appeared three hundred and twenty pairs of gladiators, all equipped in the most costly manner. All this was done with borrowed money: his popularity became immense, and was increased by the manner in which he contrived on every occasion to humble the pride of the aristocracy. One morning, the trophies and statues of Marius, which had been removed from the Capitol by Sulla, were found restored to their places. Every one knew that this was Cæsar's doing, and the people were delighted at the reappearance of the monuments of their great champion, while the senatorial party, though alarmed in the highest degree, and apprehending nothing short of a revolution, did not dare to challenge his conduct. After his aedileship he continued to annoy the partisans of the senate in various ways, but chiefly by bringing accusations against those who were guilty of crimes committed under the protection of the laws of Sulla. In B. C. 63 he was elected chief pontiff, although men far above him in rank and station were his competitors; and shortly after, he obtained the office of prætor for the year following.

His enemies now made every effort to check him in his rapid progress, and if possible to crush him. The discovery of the Catilinarian conspiracy seemed to offer a favorable opportunity: he was privately charged with being an accomplice; but not a shadow of evidence was brought forward, and there does not seem to be the slightest ground for believing that he could have embarked in that mad and senseless scheme. During his prætorship vehement disputes were agitated, on account of Cicero having put to death some of the associates of Cataline without a formal trial. Cæsar supported the enemies of Cicero, while M. Cato opposed him. Owing to the violence with which the question was debated, Cæsar and one of the tribunes were suspended by the senate from their offices; but Cæsar's conduct on that occasion was so well calculated, and so prudent, that the senate in the end was obliged to apologize for its hasty measure, and publicly to thank him for his moderation. This was a great humiliation for the aristocratic party, but they had brought it upon themselves. In the same year Cæsar divorced his wife Pompeia, having discovered that she was carrying on an intrigue with the notorious P. Clodius; but he did not prosecute the offender, because he was very popular, and a man of great importance of Cæsar's own party.

After the termination of his prætorship, Cæsar undertook the administration of the province of Western Spain. His debts had at this time become so enormous, and his creditors so clamorous, that he was obliged to take some steps towards relieving himself before quitting Rome. The wealthy Crassus and other friends became security for him; and matters being thus arranged, he set out for his province. He was now, for the first time, at the head of an army, and in a short time, like a true military genius, he at once displayed all the qualities of a great general. After having subdued some of the mountain tribes of Lusitania, and taken Brigantium, a town of the Gallæci, he returned to Rome. The money he had collected in Spain enabled him to pay his debts, and in B.C. 60 he offered himself as a candidate for the consulship. His own influence and popularity, and the support of Pompey, secured his election; but the aristocrats, by immense exertion and bribery, contrived to obtain the appointment of M. Bibulus, a stout champion of their party, as his colleague. Pompey had before this time definitely joined the popular party; for, on his return from the Mithridatic war, the senate refused to ratify the regulations which he had made in Asia, and Cæsar promised him by and by to compel its sanction. After his election, Cæsar, Pompey, and Crassus formed an alliance, in which they agreed to support one another; their union rendered them invincible, and they accordingly had the fate of the republic in their hands. The year of Cæsar's consulship is remarkable for several legislative enactments. By one of these he compelled the senate to publish the reports of its proceedings, whereby it became amenable to public opinion. The second was an agrarian law, by which twenty thousand citizens, and among them many of Pompey's veterans, received assignments of the public land in Campania. This law was carried by force of arms, and in spite of the most violent opposition of the aristocracy and his colleague Bibulus, who was so mortified by the enactment, that he withdrew altogether from public life until the expiration of his consulship. By this law Cæsar gained the firmest hold on the attachment of the people; and his next measure was calculated to secure the favor of the equites. These men, in their eagerness to obtain contracts for raising the public revenue in the provinces, had offered larger sums than they could afford, and Cæsar now prevailed upon the people to relieve them of one-third of their payment. After this he induced the senate to sanction the regulations of Pompey in Asia. The senate had assigned to Cæsar a province from which neither fame nor gain could be derived; but as he had now secured the support of the people, the equites, and Pompey, he prevailed upon the tribune Vatinius to propose to the people that, after the expiration of his consulship, he should receive the administration of Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum for five years. The bill was passed; and the senate, of its own accord, added the province of Transalpine Gaul, it being apprehended that the people would demand it for Cæsar. In order to attach Pompey as firmly as possible to his cause, Cæsar gave him his daughter Julia in marriage, and he himself married the daughter of L. Calpurnius Piso, who was elected consul for the year B.C. 57.

The province of Transalpine Gaul afforded Cæsar a brilliant opportunity of displaying his military genius, and of attaching the army to his person; while at the same time he was not too far from Rome to continue his connection with the city, watch the proceedings of his enemies, and keep his friends actively engaged in promoting his interests; for he must have foreseen that, if the aristocracy should ever succeed in gaining Pompey over to their side, they would not scruple to use force against him. After the close of his consulship, he remained for some time in the city; for although his successors in office were attached to his cause, the prætors wanted to rescind his regulations; but their attempts were useless. After quitting Rome, he lingered for a few months with his legions in the neighborhood of the city, with the view of supporting Clodius, who was then tribune of the people, and had resolved to bring about the downfall of Cicero. When the latter had withdrawn to exile, Cæsar, about the end of April, B.C. 58, set out for Gaul. We need not here give an account of his campaigns in that country, for they are described by the great general himself. Suffice it to say, that during his administration of Gaul, from B.C. 58 to B.C. 50, he completely subdued the country between the Rhine, the ocean, the Pyrenees, and the Alps, notwithstanding the repeated and formidable attempts of the inhabitants to shake off the Roman yoke; and that this was the first great step towards Romanising a region in which, during the empire, the Latin language was as commonly spoken as in Italy. The French language, even at this day, is a living proof to what extent Roman civilization at one time prevailed in Gaul. Cæsar, moreover, twice crossed the Rhine into Germany, and twice invaded Britain, but made no permanent conquests in either.

It is remarked above that Cæsar received his provinces for five years, a period which would have terminated in B.C. 54; but in B.C. 56, while his army was in winter quarters, he had a meeting with Pompey and Crassus in the north of Italy, at which it was arranged that Pompey should have the consulship for the year B.C. 55, and that afterwards they should have the provinces of Spain and Syria for five years each. The two, in return, promised to procure for Cæsar the prolongation of his administration of Gaul for five years. This was brought about by a bill of the tribune Trebonius; so that Cæsar's proconsulship of Gaul was now to be continued till the end of B.C. 49. The year after these new arrangements, Julia, the wife of Pompey, died; and there being no longer any bond between Cæsar and Pompey, their friendship began to cool, especially on the part of the latter. The death of Crassus in his unfortunate campaign against the Parthians, in B. C. 53, left Cæsar and Pompey alone at the head of the republic. Cæsar's victories in Gaul daily increased his reputation, and roused the people's admiration of his exploits; while Pompey, who had once been the greatest man of the state, began to perceive, with feelings of mortification, that Cæsar was rising above him in public estimation. Hence Pompey took no steps to check the terrible anarchy which prevailed at Rome about the end of B. C. 53, and the beginning of B. C. 52, in consequence of the murder of Clodius. During these disturbances he hoped to be called to the dictatorship, but though he was disappointed in this, his vanity was gratified by being elected sole consul. As this was the doing of the aristocracy, he was inclined to become reconciled to them. He now also procured for himself the prolongation of his proconsulship of Spain for five years; but as he did not yet think it advisable to break with Cæsar, he had at the same time a law passed, conferring on Cæsar the privilege of standing for the consulship without appearing at Rome in person. In the mean time, however, Pompey continued to attach himself more closely to the aristocracy, who, in consequence, became bolder and bolder in the display of their hatred towards Cæsar. In B. C. 51, the consul M. Claudius Marcellus, one of the most violent aristocrats, proposed to send a successor of Cæsar to Gaul, because the pacification of that province was completed; and at the same time he made an attempt to deprive Cæsar of the privilege which Pompey's influence had recently procured for him. The consuls of the year following, and the energetic tribune C. Curio, were expected to strike a decisive blow at our hero, as they were believed to be warm supporters of Pompey and the senate; but Cæsar's agents, and the liberal bribes which he caused to be distributed among the leading men, thwarted the plans of the aristocracy, and Curio was completely bought over. As the senate dreaded nothing so much as the election of Cæsar to the consulship in his absence, and while he was at the head of his army, it was decreed, on the proposal of C. Marcellus, that he should lay down his command before the 18th of November, B. C. 50—an unreasonable demand, as his proconsulship had legally to last for another year. Curio, however, interposed his veto, and the decree was annulled.

Cæsar, fully convinced that he could not appear in Rome as a private person without exposing his life to imminent danger, in the mean time had marched to Cisalpine Gaul, and was received by all the towns with the greatest enthusiasm. The senate before this had demanded that he should give up two of his legions, alleging that they were wanted for the Parthian war; and he, unwilling to cause irritation by a refusal, despatched the legions, though he knew that, in all probability, they were intended to serve against himself. Some time after this, he took up his winter quarters at Ravenna, the southernmost town of Cisalpine Gaul, and close upon the confines of Italy. Having there learned from Curio the real state of affairs, he sent him with a conciliatory letter to the senate. When Curio arrived at Rome, the senate could hardly be prevailed upon to allow the letter to be read; and after some violent discussion, it was agreed that, unless Cæsar should disband his army before a certain day, he should be treated as a public enemy. Two tribunes interposed their veto, but to no purpose; and as even their lives were threatened, they fled in disguise to Cæsar at Ravenna, calling upon him to protect the sacred character of the tribuneship. The senate, entirely relying upon Pompey, who never dreamed of the possibility of Cæsar taking up arms against him, and who fancied that it required only his word to rouse all Italy to arms, commanded the consuls to provide for the safety of the republic. War was now declared, and the whole management of it entrusted to Pompey. But the aristocracy had miscalculated: Pompey, in his self-sufficiency, had neglected every precaution, and his party was so unpopular, that it was scarcely possible to induce any man to enrol his name as a soldier.

When Cæsar was informed by the tribunes of the last decree of the senate, he assembled the few troops he had with him, (for his main army was still beyond the Alps,) and set out towards the small river Rubicon, which formed the boundary between his province of Cisalpine Gaul and Italy. On its banks he halted for a while, doubtful as to whether he should venture upon the unconstitutional act of advancing; but at length he called out, "The die is cast!" and crossed the river. The consideration of his own safety compelled him to act as he did: there was no alternative. As he marched southward, all the towns threw their gates open to him, and his progress was like an uninterrupted triumph. The fear and alarm at Rome became so great, that the senate, with Pompey at their head, fled from the city to Capua, and thence to Brundisium, forgetting in their hurry even to take with them the contents of the public treasury. Cæsar met with no resistance till he came to Corfinium; but as Pompey did not come to the relief of the town, it surrendered; and the clemency and generosity with which the conqueror there, as elsewhere, treated his humbled opponents, at once won the attachment and admiration of all. Pompey, who was resolved to quit Italy, reached Brundisium before Cæsar, and on the 17th of March he embarked for Greece. As Cæsar had no fleet, he was unable to pursue him; and he accordingly returned, and determined first to direct his arms against Afranius and Petreius, the two legates of Pompey in Spain, who managed the administration of the province for him, and had a large army at their command. Leaving M. Antony and Lepidus behind to manage the affairs of Italy, and sending others of his friends to take possession of Sicily, Sardinia, and Africa, he hastened to Spain. Some of these generals were unsuccessful; but their losses were more than counterbalanced by the advantages which Cæsar himself had gained. On his way, he found that the town of Massilia refused to submit to him; but, without allowing himself to be detained, he left two of his legates to lay siege to the place, and proceeded to Spain. He there met with great difficulties, and sustained some severe reverses; but in the end he compelled Afranius and Petreius to surrender: they were dismissed unhurt, and their troops joined those of the conqueror. The subjugation of Spain was completed within forty days. On his return to Gaul, Massilia was still holding out; but he soon compelled a surrender, and treated the inhabitants with leniency and forbearance.

Before quitting Massilia, Cæsar was informed that, on the proposal of M. Lepidus, he had been appointed dictator. This had of course been done at Cæsar's own suggestion, and he now hastened to Rome to preside at the consular elections. Being elected one of the consuls for B.C. 48, he laid down his dictatorship, after having been invested with it only eleven days. During his stay at Rome, which was very short, he acted as if he had been the so-knowledged sovereign of the state, and had several beneficial laws passed, which greatly increased his popularity. In December, B. C. 49, he set out for Brundisium, where his troops were already assembled. Pompey in the mean time had not been idle in Greece; he had collected a large army, and great sums of money, and his fleet swayed the Mediterranean. Cæsar's fleet, on the other hand, was so small, that he could not at once transport his troops across the Adriatic. However, he arrived with a part of them safely in Epirus; but when he sent back the ships to bring the remainder, they were intercepted by M. Bibulus, Pompey's admiral, and thus a number of the forces were obliged to remain behind at Brundisium. Notwithstanding this unfortunate circumstance, he forthwith began his operations. He took several towns on his road, and hastened to Dyrrhachium, in which city Pompey kept his stores. But Pompey reached the place before Cæsar, and the hostile armies now encamped opposite one another. In the mean time Antony succeeded in carrying Cæsar's troops across the Adriatic, though not without the greatest peril. Pompey avoided a decisive engagement, and Cæsar began to blockade him; but the fortifications had scarcely been completed, when the former made an attack, and broke through them. Cæsar sustained a considerable loss. His army began to suffer from scarcity and sickness; and having lost all hope of succeeding at Dyrrhachium, he ventured upon a step, which in boldness surpassed everything he had hitherto attempted. He set out for Thessaly, having to pass through countries where he had to fight for every inch of ground, while he was pursued by Pompey's army. The conduct of the latter had hitherto been cautious and circumspect; but he and his friends being flushed with their recent victory, resolved to decide the matter by a great blow. Cæsar encamped in the plain of Pharsalus, and when Pompey came up and offered battle, he readily accepted it. Pompey's army was more than double that of his enemy, but his soldiers were effeminate nobles and inexperienced youths; and the great battle, which was fought on the 9th of August, B. C. 48, ended in the total defeat of Pompey, who fled to Egypt, where he was treacherously murdered. The news of this victory called forth such enthusiastic joy at Rome, that Cæsar was appointed dictator for a whole year, and invested with the power of tribune for life; he was also elected consul for the next five years, but this extraordinary distinction he declined. After the battle, he pursued Pompey to Egypt, and when he found that he was no more, his generous soul is said to have been moved to tears. Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, completely won the conqueror's heart, and his attempts to settle the affairs of her disturbed kingdom involved him in a war, (commonly called the Alexandrine,) in which, for a time, he was exposed to the greatest danger; but when his reinforcements arrived, he succeeded in placing Cleopatra upon the throne. In B. C. 47, he marched through Syria to Pontus, to chastise Pharnaces, who had defeated one of his legates. The Parthian king was utterly defeated at the first encounter, and without much difficulty. After this victory, he sent to Rome the laconic but expressive report: "I came, saw, and conquered!" ("Veni, vidi, vici!") Hereupon he returned to Rome, where, by the sale of the property of Pompey and several other aristocrats, he obtained the means of rewarding his soldiers and friends. For the same purpose he increased the number of quaestors, while he also caused himself to be appointed dictator for the next year.

After remaining at Rome for a few months, he set out for Africa towards the end of B. C. 47; for Cato and Scipio had there collected a numerous army of the Pompeian party, and threatened to become formidable; but the battle of Thapsus, in April, B. C. 46, decided their fate in Africa; and Cato, who could not endure to survive the fall of the republic, put an end to his own life at Utica. The Pompeian party was now utterly destroyed, and Cæsar was the undisputed master of the whole of the Roman world. Before his return to Rome, every one dreaded a repetition of the horrors committed in the days of Marius and Sulla; but these fears were groundless, for cruelty and revenge formed no part of Cæsar's character; he showed a clemency and readiness to forgive which filled his enemies with amazement; and did everything in his power to allay all animosity and party spirit. The dictatorship was now bestowed upon him for ten years, and the censorship, under the new title of præfectura morum, for three. In his triumphs which he celebrated over his vanquished enemies, he took care not to hurt the feelings of the Romans by mentioning Roman citizens as their objects. When these solemnities, and their accompanying festivities, were over, he proceeded to make several very salutary legal enactments. The most important among his measures was the reform of the calendar, which, through the arbitrary management of the pontiffs, had been thrown into such confusion, that at that time it was about three months in advance of the natural time. This reform was accomplished in B. C. 46, with the assistance of the Alexandrian mathematician Sosigenes.

In the mean time the two sons of Pompey, Cneius and Sextus, had collected the last remnants of their father's party in Spain, and being joined by many of the Spaniards, they resolved to make a last and desperate attempt to recover what was lost. As soon as Cæsar heard of their movements, he hastened to Spain towards the end of B. C. 46. The enemies offered a most desperate resistance; but the battle of Munda, which Cæsar was on the point of losing, and which he gained only by his personal valor and intrepidity, decided the fate of his antagonists. Cneius was killed, but Sextus made his escape. On his return to Rome in October B. C. 46, Cæsar celebrated another triumph, and was received by the senate with the most abject flattery and servility: he was honored with the title of 'Father of his Country;' statues of him were erected in all the temples; the month of Quintilis, in which he was born, was henceforth called Julius (July); he received the title of Imperator, and the dictatorship for life, and the consulship for the next ten years. These and other extraordinary distinctions were literally showered upon him: he, in fact, was the sovereign of the empire. He now began to devise vast schemes for the benefit of his country and his fellow citizens. He increased the number of the senators, quaestors, aediles, and prætors, which afforded him the means of rewarding those friends who had served him in his late struggles. He also undertook or designed a great number of works of public utility; but few of them were completed, as his career was cut short in the midst of his plans. It is a singular fact, that among his numerous schemes there is none to show that he intended to reform the constitution of the republic; but it seems he was convinced that no reform could restore that of which the soul and spirit had departed long since; and even if he aimed at reform, he must have known that the first thing to be done was to establish his own power on a sure and legal foundation. It was perhaps for this reason that he was not content with the substance of regal power, but was anxious also to have the outward signs of royalty, and thereby, as it were, to legalise that which he possessed. An attempt was accordingly made by M. Antony to offer him the diadem in February B. C. 44; but as the people received the proposal with coolness, Cæsar for the present declined the honor. How much he was bent upon obtaining it, however, became manifest soon after, when two of the tribunes were sent into exile for having ventured to manifest their disapproval of conferring upon him the kingly title.

One of his great plans was to secure the eastern frontier of the empire by a war against the Parthians, for which some preparations had already been made. When the Sibylline books were consulted respecting the undertaking, they were reported to state that the Parthians could be conquered only by a king; and one of Cæsar's friends accordingly was to bring forward a proposal in the senate, that Cæsar out of Italy should be permitted to assume the title of king. But this scheme was frustrated: for a conspiracy had been formed against the life of the dictator at the very beginning of the year. It was headed by Cassius and Brutus, and upwards of sixty persons were privy to it. Their pretext was the restoration of the republic; but with the exception of Brutus, there was perhaps not one who was actuated by pure motives; many of them had been mercifully treated, and promoted to high honors, by him whom they conspired to murder; and others, such as Cassius, had no other motive except wounded pride and thwarted ambition. The 15th of March, the day on which Cæsar was to receive the title of king, was fixed upon by the conspirators as a fit opportunity for carrying their design into effect. When Cæsar, having been cautioned in vain, entered the senate-house, one of the conspirators approached him, as if he were about to ask some favor, and then gave him the first blow. Cæsar defended himself manfully until he perceived Brutus, whom he loved as a son, among the conspirators; he then wrapt himself up in his toga, and sank after receiving twenty-three wounds. He died in the fifty-sixth year of his age, B. C. 44.

Thus did Rome lose the only man who could have restored peace and happiness to the state, and under whose mild sway she might have forgotten the woes she had been suffering for the last fifty years. Those who pretended to restore freedom, only plunged the commonwealth into still greater miseries than those from which she had emerged through the victories of Cæsar; until, ultimately, it was found preferable to enjoy peace, and the security of life and property, under one ruler, than to place all that is dear to man in perpetual jeopardy. As a general, Cæsar had from the first displayed all the qualities of a great military genius; and though, in the province of Gaul, he sacrificed the lives of thousands of barbarians without remorse, yet throughout his civil wars he showed a generosity and mildness towards his vanquished opponents which filled those who had seen the fearful days of Marius and Sulla with admiration and affection. For the display of his statesmanship he had little time; but what he did, is enough to show what he would have accomplished, if he had been permitted to carry out his plans.

Perhaps the most surprising circumstance in Cæsar's career, is the fact that, notwithstanding his extraordinary activity ever after his entering upon public life, he found leisure to cultivate the arts and literature, and to compose works which, like those of Cicero, gave the literary tone and character to that period, and which to this day are ranked among the finest specimens of ancient literature. Unfortunately, the greater number of them are lost, and only a few isolated passages remain, which are occasionally quoted by later writers. He was also one of the first orators of his age, and we possess a long catalogue of subjects on which he spoke in public. But it was not only the history and politics of his own time which engaged his attention: there was nothing capable of furnishing materials for the human mind to reflect upon, which did not at one time or another occupy him; and among his many works, there was one even on grammar, which is often quoted as an authority by the later grammarians of Rome. In short, Cæsar must be pronounced to have been a universal genius: he was great not only as a general, but as a statesman, a lawgiver, a jurist, an orator, a poet, an historian, a scholar, a mathematician, and an architect.

The existing productions of Cæsar are his memoirs of the Gallic and Civil wars, under the title of Commentarii—that is, diaries or journals. Their style is distinguished for its noble simplicity, transparent clearness and precision, as well as perfect freedom from all rhetorical pomp. They are, in fact, specimens of what the language of conversation among men of education and talent was in those times; and the few peculiarities and irregularities which their style presents are, on the whole, nothing but what may be termed conversational licences, showing a total absence of everything studied and formal. The substance of these works was probably written down during the campaigns themselves, and they were afterwards revised in the time which their author spent in winter quarters. The Commentarii of the Gallic war contain the history of the first seven years of his campaigns, in seven books: an eighth is commonly added, which is believed to be the composition of his friend, A. Hirtius. The history of the Civil war between Cæsar and Pompey, in three books, contains the history from Cæsar's crossing the Rubicon down to his arrival in Egypt, after the battle of Pharsalus. In the common editions of Cæsar's works, besides the eighth book on the Gallic war, there is appended a book on the Alexandrine, and another on the African war, both probably productions of A. Hirtius; and lastly, a curious account of Cæsar's war in Spain against the sons of Pompey, the author of which is utterly unknown, and seems to have been a person of no education. The only reason why these productions are usually printed together seems to be, that they contain accounts of the successive wars in which the great general was engaged. The genuine productions of Cæsar, however, consist, as already stated, of no more than the seven books on the Gallic, and the three on the Civil war.
